FRENCH AFFAIRS.

Question of Prolongation the Term of the Present Administration—Disquietude of the Royalists—The Newspapers to Support Independent Candidates—Arrests and Courts-Martial.

VERSAILLES, June 16.—FRANCIS PAUL MAURICE, the dramatist and novelist, who was arrested in Paris as a Communist, has been released from imprisonment. There will be for the present no transfer of the Executive and Legislative Departments of the Government, which will remain as at present constituted at Versailles until October. The Court-martial will assemble next week for the trial of MM. ROCHEFORT, ASSI and ROSSEL. Motions have been submitted in the Assembly by M. RAMEL, providing for the prolongation of the powers of both the Assembly and President THIERS for two years, and also for the election of a committee to draw up a bill constituting the future government of France. Gen. DOUAY'S corps has gone to Lyons. Its mission is to disarm the National Guards in the Valley of the Rhone, from Lyons to Marseilles. Gen. CLINCHANT remains at Versailles, and Gen. L'ADMIRAULT in Paris with 10,000 men. About 20,000 troops will be sent to Algeria. The Second Corps is at Versailles. The principal towns throughout the country are to be garrisoned. The chief newspapers have constituted themselves an election committee, for the support of non-partisan candidates for the Assembly, whose character are guarantees that they will support law and order. The Communist General, LA CECILIA, has been arrested in the Department of Cabrades. Nothing has yet been determined by the Government relative to raising the state of siege in Paris.

The Grand Review—German Army of Occupation to be Reduced—Proclamation of the International Society.

VERSAILLES, June 16.—The journalists who have constituted themselves an Electoral Committee offer to the electors a collective list of candidates, but the Republican journals refuse to accept the programme. The grand review of 100,000 men, which has been announced for the Champ de Mars on Sunday next, will be held at Longchamps. A rumor which has obtained circulation of modifications in the Ministry, is authoritatively contradicted. The motions submitted in the Assembly yesterday by M. BATIE, were unexpected by his colleagues, and are regarded as inopportune. It is thought no action will be taken upon them by the Assembly. It is reported that M. PYAT has been arrested at La Villette, disguised as a priest. Gen. FABRICE has presented his compliments to M. THIERS upon the overthrow of the Commune. Prince BISMARCK has promised to diminish the German Army of occupation in France. The amount of the proposed French loan will, it is now said, be reduced one fifth.

PARIS, June 16.—A proclamation has been issued by the International Society which declares:

"We are disarmed but not conquered and are still one hundred thousand strong. FAVRE and TROCHU were the authors of our misfortunes, aided by capital and the priesthood. We accept the responsibility of the conflagration. We must have no interior deputies; no divisions at the polls. Reaction took away our arms, but not our votes. Vive la Social Republique! Vive la Commune!"

The Causes of the Insurrection to be Investigated—Warm Discussion in the Assembly—The International Society—New Candidates.

VERSAILLES, June 16.—In the Assembly, today, the resolution appointing a committee to revise the decrees of the Government of National Defense passed to a second reading. MM. ARAGO and SIMON, during the debate on the resolution, urged a thorough investigation, and protested against the calumnies heaped upon that Government. A resolution for a committee to inquire into causes of the late insurrection in Paris, was introduced, and was followed by a heated discussion. M. HAUTJENS attacked the Party of the Left as fosterers of the revolutionary spirit. M. FOLAIN defended the International Society and denounced NAPOLEON, who, he said, was at one time willing to allow a memorial issued by the Society to be distributed in France if a paragraph eulogizing him was inserted in it. M. FOLAIN promised, if the investigation was ordered, to appear before the Committee with documentary evidence justifying the course of the International Society throughout the late troubles. He was asked by a Deputy if he could likewise defend the insurrection, and replied by indignantly repudiating all sympathy with assassins and incendiaries. The resolution for a committee of investigation was adopted.

PARIS, June 16.—AUGUSTIN COCHIN, one of the leaders of the Clerical Party, has been appointed Prefect of the Department of Seine-et-Oise. M. COQUEREL has written a letter to the Press urging the necessity of a republican form of government for France. The Republican journals condemn the proposed military review of Sunday as impolitic and in bad taste. M. GLAIZ-BIZOIN is a candidate for the Assembly for one of the Paris districts. He is a supporter of President THIERS.

Eighteen newspapers are represented in the self-constituted Electoral Committee of journalists. The programme of the Committee is opposed by the Republican organs, because the newspapers which support the movement are considered favorable to a monarchy.

CHINA.

Trouble at the Corea—Expedition of Admiral Rodgers—A Lively Engagement With the Native Protection Sought for Shipwrecked Sailors.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—About the first of the present month, our Minister at China, with Admiral RODGERS, commanding the American fleet in the East, made an expedition to the Corea, lying between the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan, and inhabited by a barbarous, treacherous and warlike people, entirely independent of the Government of China. This expedition was undertaken for the purpose of endeavoring to make a treaty with the Corean authorities, for the protection of shipwrecked sailors of civilized nations, who, when hitherto cast upon the shores of the peninsula, have been made slaves or murdered, or were otherwise ill-treated. The expedition was also accompanied by the ships of some other of the civilized nations upon the station, including a French, and, it is believed, an English and Prussian vessel. The dispatch from Admiral RODGERS, of which the following is the substance, was received at the Navy Department, and dated at Barren Island Corea, June 3, and sent from Shanghai:

"Our Minister and Corean Envoys exchanged professions of amicable intentions. The Coreans made no objections to a survey of their waters. The Monocacy, the Palos and four steam-launches, under Commander BLAKE, were sent June 1 to examine the channel, which is called Difficult Passage, on the French Chart No. 2,756, at a point where navigation was most perilous. Masked batteries, manned by several thousand Coreans, were unmasked, and opened a heavy fire without warning upon our people. The French ship, in advance, fought gallantly. Our vessels leaving its fire, drove the enemy from their works. The tide sweeps all the ships past the batteries. They anchored and threw shells among the retreating enemy. Eight-inch shells were evidently not expected. The Monocacy was slightly injured by knocking upon a sunken rock, but is now temporarily repaired. The vessels returning received no fire, the enemy having been driven from the forts. Our people displayed great gallantry, and only two were slightly wounded. A communication was received today which may open negotiations. Otherwise, since the Coreans have met peaceful overtures with unprovoked war, our forces will land, and destroying the forts, will take such other measures as the interests of civilization require."

Execution of Ferguson, the Murderer, at Ithaca—He Confesses the Crime.

ITHACA, N. Y., June 16.—FERGUSON passed a very restless night. His spiritual adviser, Rev. T. C. STRONG, was with him all night. At an early hour this morning the streets began filling with people. A squad of the Fiftieth Regiment were on duty. FERGUSON's two sisters and relatives called on him, when he bade them good-bye. At 11¾ o'clock last night, in a statement to Mr. STRONG, FERGUSON confessed the crime. After some time spent by the prisoner this morning in making his preparations, Sheriff ROOT invited all those in attendance to go to the prisoner's cell, where religious services were held. Rev. Mr. WARNER made a few remarks, after which the Lord's Prayer was said and repeated by FERGUSON. The prisoner was brought into the jail-yard at 12:20 o'clock, when the death-warrant was read by Ex-Sheriff VAN KIRK, of Tompkins County, after which Sheriff ROOT asked the prisoner if he had anything to say. The condemned said: "I bid you all good-bye, and take warning by me!" The drop fell at 12:30 o'clock. He struggled for five minutes. In twenty minutes he was pronounced dead, when the body was cut down and handed over to his relatives, who will leave with it at 4 o'clock. Everything passed off quietly.

Clement L. Vallandigham Accidentally Shoots Himself—The Wound Dangerous, but Not Mortal.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 16.—CLEMENT L. VALLANDIGHAM, of counsel for the defense of THOMAS MCGEHAN, now on trial at Lebanon, Ohio, for the murder of MYERS at Hamilton, Ohio, accidentally shot himself to-night. He was in a room with Gov. MCBURNEY, and while showing how MYERS might have shot himself, the pistol was discharged, and the ball entered the right side of the abdomen, below the ribs. What direction the ball took is not known. The latest intelligence is that the ball did not penetrate the intestines, and the wound, though dangerous, is not considered mortal.

Further Particulars—His Condition Unfavorable.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 16.—Later dispatches from Lebanon say Mr. VALLANDIGHAM was vomiting, which was regarded as an unfavorable symptom, and one of his physicians said there were indications of an internal hemorrhage. The doctors ceased their fruitless search for the ball about an hour after the accident. They then closed the wound and placed the patient on his right side. He was calm and collected. It appears that no one was present with VALLANDIGHAM when the accident occurred, but Ex-Lieut.-Gov. MCBURNAY, who has been associated with him in the defense of MCGEHAN, MCBURNAY had expressed some doubt as to the theory that MYERS had shot himself. VALLANDIGHAM picked up a pistol from the table, saying he would show him in half a second. Two pistols were on the table, one unloaded, and he by mistake took up the loaded one, put it in his pocket and withdrew it, keeping the muzzle next his body. Just as it was leaving his pocket it was discharged, it is reported at nearly the same part of the body where MYERS was shot.

He at once ejaculated, "Oh, murder!" and said he had taken the wrong pistol. While the examination was going on, he watched the surgeons with eager eyes, and even assisted them in searching for the ball. The ball appears to have taken a downward course, in the direction of the bladder. A later dispatch says that the symptoms are growing more unfavorable. His pulse is above 100. The surgeons do not appear to be hopeful, although they are reticent. Still later advices state that his hands and feet are growing cold. He vomits often, but throws up no blood. The physicians say he is sinking fast. His pulse is rising.

HEAVY ROBBERY IN GOSHEN.

Safe Blown Open—About $25,000 in Securities Stolen.

GOSHEN, N. Y., June 16.—The storehouse of B. M. VAIL & Co. in this village, was entered by burglars some time during last night, and about $25,000 in securities of various kinds stolen. Entrance to the building was effected by prying open a rear window, and the safe was opened with wedges and powder. The safe was considered one of the strongest in the place, being constructed with a "banker's chest" inside, closed by a heavy door, with lock, of two stout bolts. The inside door was opened without unhinging the bolts, being forced back in some manner. A large quantity of powder must have been used, as the books were considerably scorched. Several persons heard the shock of the discharge, and describe it as terrific. About $100 in coin was secured by the rogues. The securities stolen include bonds of the Chicago Railroad, Montgomery and Erie, Crawfordtown bonds, &c., &c. Several explosions at a distance from the scene of the robbery the same night are now understood to have been diversions to call off the attention of the Police.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17—1 A. M.—The barometer remains low on the Pacific Coast and is now falling. It has risen slightly at the Rocky Mountain stations and in the Atlantic States, and has fallen throughout the Mississippi Valley, and especially north and west of Indiana. The temperature has fallen slightly over the lake district, and has remained low during the day on the Atlantic coast. Light rains were reported Thursday night on the South Atlantic coast and in southern Illinois and Arkansas. Threatening weather now prevails in Indiana and Illinois, and westward with light southeasterly winds. Light winds and calms are now reported from the Atlantic and Gulf coasts and the lakes.

PROBABILITIES.

The cloudy and threatening weather of the Mississippi Valley will probably extend over the Ohio Valley and Upper Lakes on Saturday, with easterly winds on the Lower Lakes and Atlantic Coast, and southerly winds on Gulf, no extended dangerous storm is apprehended.

The Cheney Controversy—How the Bishops Disagree.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The Journal, this evening, says a new and very interesting development has recently come to light in the matter of Bishop WHITEHOUSE and Rector CHENEY. Several Bishops in the Church belonging to what is popularly known as the High Church, previously to the pronouncement of the sentence of degradation against Mr. CHENEY, visited and wrote letters to Bishop WHITEHOUSE, advising him not to proceed to that extreme measure. It is said they suggested that it was his province, under the canons of the Church, to remit or materially modify the sentence given by the Ecclesiastical Court. Two of these Bishops visited Chicago for this purpose and labored to bring about such a result, but in vain. A prominent Bishop has also written Mr. CHENEY that he will still recognize him (CHENEY) as a minister of good standing in the Episcopal Church.

Moral Science Congress—Objects of the Association—Constitution and By-Laws Adopted.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—The Committee of the Moral Science Congress on a Constitution made a report defining the objects of the Association, which are to define, promote and manifest the virtuality and unity of the Catholic Church of Christ, which we hold to be the sum of all particular Evangelical denominations; to elevate, unify and strengthen the conscience of its members, to consecrate, systematize and develop the resources and agencies of the Church, and thereby under the Divine blessing to hasten the time so long desired, when the kingdoms of this world shall become kingdoms of our Lord and His Christ. The Constitution and by-laws were adopted, and New-York was chosen to hold the next meeting in the last week of April, 1872. The Convention adjourned.

New-Hampshire Legislature—Communications to the Governor.

CONCORD, N. H., June 16.—Gov. WESTON laid before the House, today, communications from the Governor of Pennsylvania, soliciting the State to join the National Committee for a centennial celebration in 1876; from the Chairman of the United States Light-house Board, for leave to purchase in the State for light-house purposes, with power to take it to a jury for appraisal in case of the disagreement of the parties; and from the trustees of the Antietam Cemetery, soliciting aid for the erection of a monument. The communications were referred. Both Houses adjourned today until Monday next.

WILLIAM MCALLISTER, clerk of the steamer Leonidas, on the Ohio, has disappeared, and nothing has been heard of him since Saturday last, at Louisville. He had been making collections for the steamer.

WASHINGTON.

The New-York Central Case—The Knights and Politics in Georgia—Safety Appliances for Steam-Boats—Bids for Indian Supplies—New Pilot Regulations—Miscellaneous Matters.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Secretary BOUTWELL, today, decided that he would not entertain the appeal in the New-York Central case. He holds that the case may be brought before him for a final hearing, but that the hearing of an appeal now is not necessary to the proceedings of the Company, nor to the protection of their rights in the Courts. The collection of the tax, which was temporarily stayed by order of the Secretary pending the appeal, will probably now be enforced.

THE CABINET.

The President returned to Long Branch on the 9 o'clock train to-night. The next Cabinet meeting will be held about three weeks hence.

GEORGIA AND THE KUKLUX.

Trustworthy accounts of the situation of affairs in Georgia are at hand. It appears that the Kuklux organization does not exist in that State. There is but little violence, and that not of an organized political character, if indeed, it has a political origin. Mr. TOOMBS' district, as might be expected, has been the worst of any. The belief seems to have become settled that Kuklux ing will not produce its intended result, and so it is almost entirely abandoned. In politics a large body of men who were originally Whigs are now classed by themselves as Conservatives. They are undecided at present between an independent organization of their own and the Republicans or Democrats. They feel like accepting the situation, as it is termed, without reserve, and, if they join the Democracy, will organize it on the platform of the new departure, and will have it, so far as Georgia is concerned, to that basis. They lean, however, toward the Republican Party, and, under proper encouragement and recognition, will be drawn to it. They are recognized here as the best element in the State, and as straightforward, upright people, who can be depended on. Virginia and North Carolina are in a somewhat similar condition. In Georgia, the placing of the State in the hands of the very best element seems very hopeful.

STEAM-BOAT APPLIANCES.

The examination of all the various inventions presented up to the present time has been concluded by the Board of Supervising Steam-boat Inspectors, and each class has been referred to the proper committee of the Board for further investigation and report. The full session of the Board will afterward decide the kind of instruments and machines which shall be employed as required by the new law. At an exhibition, this afternoon, the Babcock Fire-extinguisher put out a big street-fire of combustible materials three times in succession, in less than a minute each time.

INDIAN SUPPLIES.

The awards for Indian supplies, for which bids were opened yesterday, will probably be made to-morrow. The Committee of the Indian Board of Commissioners has telegraphed to one of the members of the Board now in the West, to obtain some information regarding the status of certain Western bidders, and when it is received the awards will be at once made.

PATENT EXTENSION.

The Commissioner of Patents has left for a visit to his home in Ohio, and will be absent till a week from next Tuesday. Previous to his departure, last night, he granted an extension to the Kelly steel patent, which otherwise would have expired June 23. This extension seems to be generally highly approved, except by those who have been opposing it, with an opposition, it is alleged, of a very questionable character.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

APPOINTMENTS.

The President made the following appointments today: James Coly to be Assessor of internal revenue for the Second District of Utah; H. W. Wilkinson, Collector of Customs at Pearl River, Miss.; John H. Pitts and John H. Wickliser, Commissioners to attend the centennial anniversary of American independence at Philadelphia.

A DECEASED CLERK.

A. P. CUNNINGHAM, just deceased, was seventy-one years of age. He was an ex-clerk of the Treasury Department, and was one of the oldest printers in Washington. In 1834 he was the publisher in this city of the organ designed to further the claims of Judge WHITE to the Presidency.

BRICK-MAKERS' STRIKE AT AN END.

The brick-makers' strike at the various yards in this vicinity has ended in the resumption of work at the old rates. The proprietors yesterday agreed to close their yards rather than compromise with the strikers. Now that the threatening demonstrations are over, it is reported the employers will give increased pay to their best hands.

C. C. BOWEN SEEKING FOR PARDON.

Mr. RIDDLE, counsel for BOWEN, recently convicted of bigamy, called at the Executive Mansion, today, but did not see the President. He, however, left a letter for him, with a view to procure the pardon of BOWEN.

THE INDIAN COMMISSIONERS.

GEORGE H. STUART, of Philadelphia, and JOHN V. FARWELL, of Chicago, members of the Indian Commission, had an interview today with the President with reference to statements recently published reflecting upon the conduct of the Commission, which they supposed emanated from the Indian Bureau. It is known that the Board and the Commissioner (PARKER) are not in accord on several subjects relating to the management of the finances of the Indian Department. The result of the interview is not yet known.

THE NEW REGULATIONS.

The Board of Supervising Inspectors of steam-boats today adopted a resolution that the new rules and regulations for the government of pilots of steamers navigating seas, gulfs, lakes, bays or rivers, shall not go into effect until the 1st of January, 1873. In the meantime, the old rules will continue in force.

NO ENCOURAGEMENT OF THE MANLY ART.

Several days ago the Trustees of Odd-fellows' Hall refused to rent the hall for a pugilistic exhibition, and now the lower branch of the Territorial Government has passed a resolution directing the Superintendent of Police to prevent any exhibition of the art of boxing and pugilism in the District of Columbia until the passage of an act regulating the same.

THE GREEK MINISTER.

It is said that the report that Mr. RANGABE has been transferred from Washington, and to be Minister at Paris, is erroneous, and, perhaps may be explained by the fact that he has received a leave of absence of three months, which he proposes to spend in Paris.

Weston's Walk—The Great Feat Accomplished.

WESTON completed his pedestrian undertaking of 400 miles within five days, yesterday. He commenced at 4:42 o'clock yesterday morning on his 328th mile, and kept on the track from that time until 7:30 A. M., when he made his first stoppage. He resumed walking at 7:32 A. M. and stopped at 10:05 A. M., when he had added twenty miles to his record. After a rest of twenty minutes, he resumed his tramp, and then made fifty miles without making a single stop during the whole distance. His time in performing this long, continuous walk was ten hours and fifty minutes. He stopped at 9:17 o'clock last evening, but was off again twenty minutes later, and continued his march until the judges announced that he had won. His final stop was at 11:47 P. M., when he had finished the 400 miles, with eighteen minutes to spare. He made the last six miles of his walk in the following time: 395th, 14 minutes, 40 seconds; 396th, 12 minutes, 40 seconds; 397th, 13 minutes, 40 seconds; 398th, 12 minutes, 24 seconds; 399th, 12 minutes, 48 seconds; 400th, 11 minutes, 7 seconds. The last second of the 399th, or the last mile of the walk, was made in 1 minute and 13 seconds. At the termination of the great task, Prof. DOREMUS made a few remarks, in which he referred to WESTON's exhibition as a contribution to science.

THE HORSE PLAGUE.

General Alarm Among Horsemen—The Disease Declared an Epidemic—Extent of its Ravages—Opinions of Medical Authorities—The Disease Elsewhere.

The excitement occasioned by the horse plague in this City engaged the attention of the majority of horsemen yesterday. The subject, when first broached in last Wednesday's TIMES, called forth but passing notice, as the matter was thought to be but a temporary trouble. The particulars that have been published in these columns since that time, have awakened more attention and put many who own valuable stock on their guard. Among this latter class a very proper degree of alarm exists, and in numerous instances the prophylactic treatment has been commenced as a preventive.

That the disease is a dangerous epidemic is settled among the best authorities beyond all question. Dr. JOHN S. BRAW, the surgeon of the Second-avenue line, is the leader in that opinion. His treatment of every type of the disease, from the simplest to the most malignant form, has been the most successful. Aconite and belladonna are presented internally, and mustard blisters externally. Exercise is urged as soon as possible, and the swollen parts are annointed with liniment. As soon as possible the patients are sent out to country quarters. It was stated in yesterday's issue, a large number of the afflicted beasts thus treated have recovered, and are at work, while others promise well, and are out of danger. Out of 300 horses, 180 were attacked; of these ten died and thirty-three fully recovered. There has not been a new case reported since Friday last.

The Eighth-avenue line have had a remarkable immunity. But one case was recognized and a post-mortem examination revealed a combination of diseases as the cause of death. There are 1,000 horses domiciled in the three stories of this immense depot. Their stalls are constantly washed with carbolic acid, well drained, disinfected and dried with lime, and a twenty horse-power steam engine forces currents of fresh air, night and day, over the heads of the animals. There is by far a greater degree of cleanliness than is found in many tenement-houses. They are fed on Scotch oatmeal, two thirds of oatmeal and one-third of wheat bran, mixed with hay. The meal is all ground in the establishment, and the Superintendent declares that the cause of disease cannot be in that food. About fifty horses were in the hospital yesterday, but not one of the recent disease.

The Broadway and Seventh-avenue line have 1,000 horses. There are thirty-five of these now under treatment for this malady. Five are nearly well, ten are in the stall—in slings or otherwise helpless—and fifteen have died. Many of the convalescents are in pasture in an opposite lot, and are looking excellent. The total number of cases were fifty. Twenty were none for forty-eight hours until Thursday night, when a fine animal came in, paralyzed and helpless in the back. She fell in the stall, and kicked and hammered her hand violently. The distress in this case seems to be in the brain; otherwise the symptoms are identical with those of other cases. The food in these stables is similar to the other just described.

The Fifth-avenue line of stages has been sadly afflicted also. There are 300 horses among whom have occurred thirty cases and nine deaths. But eight cases are now extant. The others are all at work. Mr. ANNESLEY, one of the proprietors, in addition to the treatment adopted by Mr. SHAW, wraps the legs of the patients in cloths to keep up a natural warmth. The food there is one-third oats and bran, and two-thirds corn-meal, cut hay, moistened. The Madison-avenue line, and the Fourth-avenue line of stages, and the Fourth-avenue Railroad line deny having had any cases of this disease, other reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Third-avenue Railroad Company had thirteen new cases yesterday. Ten were prostrate in the yard, in an apparently hopeless condition, and five were put out of their misery. This is the only place where the disorder is attributed to the continuous quantity of meal fed. Mr. DICKINSON is about the only prominent gentleman who reasons that the stomach is the seat of the complaint. The excessive reticence and unreasonable contradictoriness of the "faculty" here, as well as in some other instances, give a very peculiar hue to their statements. The neighbors declare that the stable authorities have greatly underrated the ravages of the "fell destroyer," and report the number much greater than the owners acknowledge. The public seems to possess them. The employes are under the same influence, and the moment a horse has the appearance of being sick they account him to be plague-stricken.

One of these circumstances occurred on the Second-avenue line yesterday. One of the drivers loaned his pail to a hackman, who wished it to water his horses. He was at once soundly berated by the starter, who exclaimed, "Ha-s you no sense? or do you want to spread the distemper to them back horses? You wouldn't do that if you saw the lines of our sick beasts—no you wouldn't!" This incident will serve as a sample illustration of the popular dread and idea of the contagion. While many believe these cases to be groundless, others hold an opposite view entirely.

The Grand-street Cross-town line, which belongs to the Dry Dock, East Broadway and Battery Railroad, report their stock in a healthy condition, and say that the disease has not yet made its appearance in their stables at the foot of Grand-street.

The horses at the Bleecker-street line are said to be in a healthy condition, no evidence of the disease appearing among them.

The same is reported of the Avenue C Railroad and Stage line, which includes the Second-street stages. The Tenth-avenue line, which is the western division of the Belt Railroad, is reported to have fifty horses laid up out of about 400 not ill or which, however, are sick of the disease; how many so affected it was impossible to ascertain. From seven to ten are acknowledged to have died from it since last Saturday. It is stated that the disease has been got under control by the surgeons, and that it is dying out.

The stables of the Ninth-avenue Railroad, corner of Ninth-avenue and Fifty-first-street, are well ventilated, lighted, and every precaution taken to ward off an attack of the disease. An opinion was given here that one of the causes of the disease was the fact that the Second and Third-avenue stables, where a few days ago were overcrowded with stock. This is not the case in the Ninth-avenue stables, and there is plenty of room for the horses. Nothing more could be learned in relation to the progress of the disease on this Day. Dock line never than the six cases reported yesterday.

The Twenty-third-street line of stages have taken four vehicles off the route on account of the havoc of the disease among their horses. The number sick is it is difficult to arrive at, from the reluctance on this route to answer questions—the before-mentioned peculiarity of all. Seven were acknowledged to have died from the disease since its outbreak, but none yesterday.

The Second, Third and Seventh-avenue Railroad lines have drawn off a few cars, and the Fifth-avenue Stage line has made a similar deduction, but there is no serious embarrassment to travel, as quicker time is made to balance the difference.

THE PLAGUE IN WESTCHESTER COUNTY.

The horses in the towns and villages of Westchester County have almost entirely escaped the plague. A short time ago, two horses which were purchased somewhere in the West for the use of the Police force at Yonkers became sick, not by proper treatment they finally recovered. Mr. ALVIN HIGGINS, of New-Rochelle, lost a valuable horse about a week ago, as it is believed, by the distemper; and Mr. LAKE, of the firm of HUMMELL & LAKE, of this City, and residing at Pelham Neck, lost a horse worth $600 by the disease.

JEROME PARK RACES.

The Last Day of the Spring Meeting—Pool-Selling Last Night.

The closing races of the Spring meeting of the American Jockey Club takes place at Jerome Park this afternoon. The track will probably be in better condition than on any of the previous days, and fine sport may be expected. There will undoubtedly be a large attendance, as those who have witnessed the previous races will be sure to turn out again to see the three-mile dash, while thousands who have deferred their visit to the Park till the last day will help to swell the throng in the grand stand.

The first race today will be one and a quarter miles, for three-year-olds, premium $600; entrance money to second horse; winner of Belmont or Ladies' Stakes seven pounds extra; of both, twelve pounds extra. The following horses will start in this race: Sultan, Pensioner, Kalkon, Lord Byron, CORNING's bay colt by Revenue Sentland, Mother Goose, Belle Meade and Miss Kelly. Sultan is the favorite in this race, and sold last night at odds of three to one against the field.

The second race will be for Consolation Premium, $300; entrance money to second horse; for Bowes beaten during this meeting, (winners excluded.) If beaten more than once, allowed seven pounds; distance one mile and three-quarters. The probable starters in this race will be Pleasure, Sir Evylin, Gerald and Questionnaire. Pleasure seems to have raised the sanguine hopes of the betting men, and sold in the pools last night at two to one against the field.

The third race will be a dash of three miles for all ages; premium, $1,200; entrance money to second horse. The following horses will run: Helmbold, Corinne and Aldermen. Helmbold is of course a hot favorite in this lot, selling at five to one against the field.

The steeple-chase did not fill yesterday; this will be a great disappointment, as it was to many the chief attraction of the day.

The fourth event of the day will be a match for $600 a side, between Chimera and Oberland, to carry 150 pounds; distance one mile.

The closing race of the meeting will be a match for $600 a side, between Echo, 105 pounds, and Vibrac, 97 pounds; distance two miles. Echo was the favorite last night at odds of $600 to $200.

The pools sold by Messrs. UNDERWOOD & McGOWAN and MILLER, BIRD & JOHNSON, last night, were at the following rates:

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

RALPH THE HEIR. A Novel. By ANTHONY TROLLOPE. New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

The appearance of a new novel by ANTHONY TROLLOPE is an event in the literary world which will be regarded with interest by a very large class of readers. Among living English novelists, Mr. TROLLOPE stands high in the second class, if, indeed, he may not be said to have made his way within the limits of the first class. His new book will be found quite up to his high standard. His characters, as in all his novels, are numerous; but each has well-marked traits, and stands out clear and strong in its individuality. The scenes and incidents are full of life and variety, and their connection and relation to each other are clearly brought out, and the story moves on with lively pace, never allowing the reader's interest to flag for a moment. It is a picture of English life and character, such as the author delights in drawing. Ralph Newton, the hero, has a full share of the faults and imperfections of human nature, with no more of the heroic in his composition than is generally to be found in young men of his station. He has vices and weaknesses like the people we are acquainted with in society, and selfish objects and interests sway him quite as much as any abstract notion of right and wrong, or any pure desire or lofty aspiration. In fact, selfish considerations and the matter-of-fact demands of society finally overway all purer influences, and the pose of him, as most people in this world are disposed to, according to the demands of circumstances and his own interest. He is by no means a model for imitation, or a hero to be admired. Throughout the book there are many subordinate characters, and a multiplicity of incidents, which are managed with the skill of a cunning and experienced hand. The scenes are life-like and graphic, and Ralph the Heir will be found one of the most entertaining of Mr. TROLLOPE's recent novels.

LITTLE MEN; LIFE AT PLUMFIELD WITH JO'S BOYS. By LOUISA M. ALCOTT. Boston: ROBERTS BROTHERS.

Miss ALCOTT, whose name has already become a household word among little people, will gain a new hold upon their love and admiration by this little book. It forms a fitting sequel to Little Women, and contains the same elements of popularity. It is not, and does not profess to be, a story, but as the author says in the opening of one of the chapters, "a few scenes in the life at Plumfield for the amusement of certain little persons;" and she assures her readers that "most of the incidents are taken from real life, and the oldest are the truest, for no person, no matter how vivid an imagination he may have, can invent anything half so droll as the freaks and fancies that originate in the lively brains of little people." Jo, who is an old favorite with all readers of Little Women, we find with her German husband, Mr. Bhaer, in charge of a school at Plumfield, which would delight the heart of any youngster who has had his ideas of schools formed in the famous institutions, private or public, which are the boast of our modern educational system. She has a dozen boys and two girls in her charge, and the book is a picture of their life through a single season, from the beginning of Spring to the end of Autumn. A charming picture it is, too. The characters and condition of the children are varied, each being a type in its way, and they present, in themselves and surroundings, just the kind of material that Miss ALCOTT delights to deal with. Dan, Nat, Tommy and Demi, with the two girls, Daisy and Nan, form what may be regarded as the "leading characters," though the others in their degree contribute no unimportant part to the interest of the scenes. All but the first two and the last named are inmates at Plumfield when the reader is first introduced. Nat has been picked up in the streets of the city where he has been a wandering musician with his father, now dead, and is sent to Jo by Mr. Laurence, our old acquaintance "Laurie," that she and Fritz may "care for his overtasked body, and help his neglected mind." He is a slender, timid lad, very sensitive and grateful for kind treatment, and possessed of an ardent passion for music. Tommy is a mischievous, harum-scarum little fellow, always up to pranks, and forever getting his head thumped and his clothes torn. Demi is a studious and thoughtful young philosopher, fond of stories and full of childish fancies. Daisy, his sister, is a quiet, domestic little lady, full of all womanly graces in their virgin state. Nan comes to the school a wild hoyden, full of untrained impulses, but is gradually toned down to a very interesting, though spirited little woman, while Dan, who was the latest acquisition, brought in by Nat, who had known him in his unhappy city life, was at first a hard case, having been totally neglected, with all his good qualities obscured, and his bad nature in a high state of development. Him, too, the magic of Plumfield life finally subdued, though he had to be sent away once to a farmer, from whom he ran away, and, after much trouble, made his way back to Mother Bhaer, whose kindness and love brought out his better qualities, and slowly subdued his wayward spirit. With this material the author works like one who thoroughly understands the childish nature, and loves it with all its wild impulses and its desire to overleap the restraints with which older and cooler heads are apt to hedge it about. All the sports and little experiences of Plumfield are pictured in a lively and extremely fascinating way, which cannot fail to charm every reader, whether old or young. No adequate idea of the book can be obtained except by reading it through, and we will not attempt to convey an inadequate one.

The principal source of gratification to the critic in the perusal of Miss ALCOTT's books consists in the fact that they form in themselves a new class of literature for young people, which is thoroughly wholesome and healthy. Albeit strict critical judgment might compel us to say that the life at Plumfield is a little too pure and good to be like anything to be found in this world—that it performs miracles upon the minds of children in the space of a few months, and that altogether it is likely to raise wishes and expectations in the mind with regard to school life that it is impossible to realize—nevertheless, it furnishes an ideal that it will benefit old and young to contemplate, and affords glimpses of life which are refreshing to the mind and heart. One faculty of which we have not spoken, but which will be expected by the readers of Miss ALCOTT's former works, is the exquisite and delicate humor which pervades many passages. Every one knows what exceedingly droll things are said and done by children, but it is rare indeed that an author is found who can catch up and reproduce this phase of their life so finely as Miss ALCOTT has done. One or two instances in the volume before us will suffice to illustrate this quality. Daisy, in the character of Mrs. Shakespeare Smith, has a ball, to which a select few of the boys are invited. Tommy and Nat are discussing the great event together, when Nat says, "I never went to a ball; what do you have to do?"

"Oh, we just play be men, and sit and stiff and stupid, like grown-up folks, and dance to please the girls. Then we eat everything and come away as soon as we can," replied Tommy, who had evidently seen something of society.

At another time the children were all gathered in a room, when they made a decree that every one that entered should tell a story. Mrs. Jo had just been trapped, and made to pay her forfeit, when little five-year old Robby came in, having got out of bed to see what was the matter, and dragged his bed cover with him. He was about to be turned ignominiously out, as one who could not pay the forfeit, when he protested vigorously against this sentence without a trial, and declared that he would tell "lots of ones" when he had "inked." Having deeply cogitated for a moment, "perched on his mother's knee and wrapped in the gay coverlet, he told the following brief but tragic tale, with an earnestness that made it very funny: 'Once a little girl went in a wood, and one nice little boy said she won't go in wood, and said, "You mustn't go in the wood." But he waited, and fell into the bunny, and was dropped dead.'

"As soon as he asked Freddy, as Rob panted out of breath with this startling beginning, 'Is that all?' asked his mother, to help him on.

"'Yes, there is another piece of it,' and Rob knit his downy eyebrows in the effort to evolve another incident.

"What did the lady do when he fell into the pitty?' asked his mother, to help him on.

"'Oh, she pumped him out and wrapped him in a newspaper, and put him on a shelf, to wait for God.'

We expect to see this book even more popular than its predecessor, and shall heartily rejoice at the success of an author whose works afford so much hearty and innocent enjoyment to the family circle, and teach such pleasant and wholesome lessons to old and young.

LIFE AND WRITINGS OF ALEXANDER JAMES DALLAS. By GEORGE MIFFLIN DALLAS. Philadelphia: J. B. LIPPINCOTT.

All but the foremost men in the early administrations of our Government are well nigh forgotten now, and a biography of President MADISON's Secretary of the Treasury is likely to awaken very little interest in the public mind. ALEXANDER J. DALLAS was, nevertheless, a prominent man in the politics of his day, and one of the founders and supporters of the Democratic Party in the time of JEFFERSON and his successors. The life of such a man is of interest to the thorough student of our political history, though the ordinary reader will find little that is attractive in the record. The present volume is of value as a contribution to American history and political biography. The "Writings," which occupy much the larger portion of the book, consist mainly of correspondence, State papers and political essays.

WALTER ROBIN. By JOHN BURROUGHS. New-York: HURD & HOUGHTON.

This little book is mainly about birds, and gives in a popular style many curious facts and observations with regard to their habits and peculiarities. It does not pretend to be a careful scientific book, but only an account of random observations; and it is highly suggestive of long tramps in the woods, and quiet studies in the original laboratory and museum of nature. It is an excellent introduction to the fascinating study of ornithology, and contains many interesting facts, a knowledge of which would add greatly to the pleasure of recreations in the fields and woods in Summer time. Its manner is easy and natural, and therefore calculated to give pleasure to the reader.

Battle of the Book.

We are glad to learn that an amicable settlement has been reached in the matter of SWINTON'S School History of the United States—a settlement creditable to all parties concerned—and that the house of IVISON, BLAKEMAN & Co. will immediately bring out the work. This case forms one of the curiosities of literature; for while there are endless instances of books trying to find a publisher, this is a case of the two leading educational houses of the country contending for a book.

One of the results of the litigation, now happily terminated, is, that Mr. SWINTON brings out two books in place of one. Pending the suit over his original manual, the author undertook and completed a text-book specifically designed to meet the wants of our common schools, graded and ungraded. This work bears the title of Swinton's Condensed School-history of the United States. The other is entitled Swinton's Comprehensive United States.

The Condensed United States will be issued by IVISON, BLAKEMAN & Co. in a few days. Advance sheets have for some time been in the hands of leading educational men of this City, and we but express their unanimous opinion when we say that this manual marks an era in school histories. Mr. SWINTON's talent as a writer of history is pretty well known to the readers of this journal, with which he was many years associated, while through his Army of the Potomac and Decisive Battles it is equally well known to the country at large. The Condensed contains many technical points of novelty and superiority, which teachers will readily appreciate. It is clear in its style, sensible in its tone, and impartial and catholic in its spirit. It will be extensively used in this City, and has been adopted by the State Educational Boards of several States. The palpable merits of the book will be its own sufficient introduction.

BOSTON SNUBS FISK, JR.

How the Attempted to Walk Over Boston and Gets It—Unmanicured Impudence of David Dudley Field's Client—Because Fisk Thinks it Won't Have Fisk, and Chesterfield Knows it Won't.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BOSTON, Thursday, June 15, 1871.

Nothing since the great battle of the Common and the Coliseum has so thoroughly roused Boston as the impudence of FISK, JR., in attempting to walk over the town and its customs with his Ninth New-York Regiment, and there hasn't since that eventful Winter of 1861 been such universal rejoicing among the best citizens as now that Boston has succeeded in showing its contempt for the man of rascalities by defeating him in one of his pet schemes, and snubbing and discomforting him as no other prominent man has been snubbed or discomforted before. As the man and the regiment are of New-York it is well that the TIMES' readers should comprehend the full extent of FISK's undertakings, and share with good Bostonians the enjoyment of his discomfiture.

In the first place, he and his Ninth Regiment have never been honored with a formal, unsolicited invitation, either from the city authorities or any military organization, to visit Boston, or yet Charlestown, to take part in the celebration of the Seventeenth of June. FISK, in his majesty, decided that he would come and parade the regiment with the loud military parading in celebration of the day, and in his conceit, looked for a meek, abject concurrence of the provincial sheep with all his regiments. So, when he had become ready to make his arrangements, he sent a committee of three officers of his regiment to the Mayor of Boston with the following note:

NEW-YORK, April 8, 1871.

Hon. William Gaston, Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR: This will introduce to you Major J. R. HITCHCOCK, Capt. G. A. FULLER, and Lieut. A. B. CONDIT, a committee of the regiment, which I have appointed by the Board to visit your city, and confer with you in regard to a proposed trip on the 17th June proximo. They are empowered to make all arrangements in behalf of the Ninth Regiment, and I would respectfully ask that the hospitality of the City be extended to the regiment. I am, with much respect,

JAMES FISK, JR.,
Colonel Commanding.

The gentlemen bearing this modest note, requesting the city's hospitalities, appeared before the Mayor in full uniform, and when he had read the note, demanded a prompt answer to take to their Colonel. The Mayor quietly explained that he could give no answer, but simply refer the note to the Board of Aldermen, who alone had power in the premises, and the gentlemen, awed by his dignified bearing, withdrew more courteously than they had entered. The Mayor did refer the note to the Board promptly, and the Board, after an expression in debate of its disgust with the impudence of the writer, promptly laid the communication on the table. During the debate one of the Aldermen, a staunch Bostonian, said, with a great deal of emphasis, that he didn't know anything about the regiment, but he did know something of its Colonel, and he did not think it would be creditable for the city to do anything in relation to the matter. This was the keynote for a good deal of plain talk, which it would have done their opponents good to hear. FISK followed up this action with the following, which almost destroyed the good reputation of the Boston city officials for dignity and courtly behavior while in council, so great was the indignation and excitement it created:

NEW-YORK, April 2, 1871.

Hon. William Gaston, Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR: On the 6th I addressed to you a letter, asking an extension of hospitality to the Ninth Regiment, New-York State National Guard, which letter I understand was delivered to you by a committee of the Regiment, and referred by you to the Board of Aldermen. I infer from the published proceedings that the letters which was delivered instead to obtain your official recognition for the visit, only authorized and instructed to an application for special favors at the expense of your city, a perversion for which there is no warrant in my letter. The intent of my application to you was (as I was informed) the law of your State did not allow the entry of an armed force, without the sanction of the Federal Government, or of the Chief Magistrate of any city to be entered. Having waited a sufficient time for your decision, and my regiment not having received from you the courtesy of a reply, I have applied, in the name of my regiment, to his Excellency the Governor of the Commonwealth to enter your city, and he has most courteously and promptly granted the request. I hoped, therefore, that you will relieve the Common Council from further consideration of the subject, which seems to be a matter of great indifference to the gentlemen under my command. Your obedient servant,

JAMES FISK, JR., Colonel Commanding.

This in the face of the statements, politely made by the Mayor to the intensely Military Committee, that not he, but the Board of Aldermen, had the power, was considered as "cool as a cucumber." The communication to the Governor, and his request, so importantly alluded to, was simply this: FISK wrote a polite note to Mr. CLAFLIN, stating that he obtained permission from Gov. HOFFMAN to leave New-York State with his regiment, and therefore would respectfully ask that he might receive permission from His Excellency to enter Massachusetts—a courteous note, not in the slightest Fiskish. To this the Governor replied that his was the first request of the kind that had been presented to him, and he didn't know as permission was needed. Nevertheless, if it would gratify him, he would formally extend his permission.

So much for this. The people of the City Hall and the citizens of Boston were forgetting the indignity put upon their Mayor, when along came this note from the irrepressible Erie Colonel:

NEW-YORK, June 2, 1871.

Hon. William Gaston, Mayor of Boston:

DEAR SIR: As I am informed that your city ordinances prohibit the entry of any regiment upon Boston Common without permission from the Mayor, I respectfully request permission for the use of the Common by the Ninth Regiment, N. G. S. N. Y., on the 17th inst., for a drill, and on the 18th for public religious services.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JAMES FISK, JR., Colonel.

This rekindled the excitement, and the City Hall was besieged by respectable remonstrants against the granting of such a request to desecrate the Sabbath, and more than that the sacred Common. The letter was referred to the Committee on Common, and by them reported upon adversely, that is so far as the Sunday use of the Common was concerned. In the meantime the Common Council, the lower branch of the city Government, who have nothing to say about the Common anyway, gratuitously voted its use to FISK, JR. This was brought about by the lobbying of his agents, who have worked zealously, employing the means, it is said, so successfully applied in behalf of Erie at Albany. But the Board of Aldermen rose in their might, and emphatically sustained the report of its Common Committee.

When FISK heard of this action it is said he got greatly excited, and swore with an oath, brightly very inappropriate in this connection, that he would be—if he wouldn't have religious services in Boston, prominently about it." So he sat down and immediately dispatched the following telegram to the Mayor of Charlestown:

NEW-YORK, June 13—9½ P. M.

To His Honor the Mayor of Charlestown, Mass.:

I am at this moment in receipt of a telegram from Boston announcing that the Ninth Regiment are denied the privilege of holding religious services in any public place in Boston except the street, on Sunday next. Will you offer the regiment (by march from Sabbath morning to your hospitable city, and there hold religious service in such suitable place as you may designate) Bunker Hill Monument or the grounds surrounding Bunker Hill Monument are subject to your control. Allow us to suggest one of these places. Please answer by telegraph at earliest moment, in order that a committee may confer with you on Thursday.

Respectfully, JAMES FISK, JR.,
Colonel Commanding.

But this availed him nothing. The Mayor politely replied by telegraph, that he had no authority in the matter, but the Board of Aldermen, to whom he would refer his communication. He added, however, that over the Bunker Hill Monument grounds the city Government had no power, and that the only other suitable place, the City Square, was encumbered at the present time. This morning, at a special meeting of the Aldermen, the matter was settled splendidly; the body voted, by a large majority, that the request be not granted. So FISK is crowded off of the Common, and out of Charlestown, and his Ninth must hold its "religious services" in some friendly open lot, or in the streets of Boston. It is expected that on its passage through the streets on Saturday, the welcome to the self-invited Ninth will not be very enthusiastic or "glorious."

A Kentucky paper notes a rapid development of the temperance reform in that State through the exertions of the Good Templars.

Hon. ROBERT FOWLER, of Maryland, has withdrawn his name as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, at the suggestion of some of his friends and in the hope of preserving harmony in the party.

A Tioga County man has found on his farm a quarry of stone slabs of uniform thickness, width and length, every slab smooth and ready for use. He thinks it very singular how they came to be so true in shape.

Col. JOHN W. L. McMAHON, formerly one of Maryland's most eminent lawyers and ablest Whig politicians, died in Cumberland, on Thursday, in the seventy-first year of his age. He has been blind for nearly ten years.

There is one virtue in the new departure in the eyes of the Cincinnati Enquirer, after all. It says it has stirred up the party, and it intimates that the hearty sweating only proves that the party has "undergone a lively awakening."

The Lexington (Ky.) Press again reminds the Democrats of the North that if they care for the support of the Democrats of the South they must exhibit something more of tact and discretion than they have recently in denouncing JEFFERSON DAVIS and "the Confederate cause."

A Connecticut shoe-maker brought suit against a customer who refused to take a pair of number twelve shoes he had ordered, and although he proved that owing to their enormous size he was compelled to sell them at a reduced price, the soulless jury brought in a verdict for the defendant.

The Lexington (Ky.) Observer corrects "a slight error." It says it intended to announce, in speaking of a recent marriage, that the bride's dress cost $7,000, and that her bridal presents amounted to $200,000. The types made out, however, that the dress cost it, and the presents $200.

The New-Orleans Bee says that the Southern people have a perfect right to ask Mr. DAVIS to speak to them; that he has a perfect right to gratify them; and that thus far it has seen nothing in his speeches inconsistent with his past career or unworthy of him or of those who invite him to speak.

The Boston Post, which a day or two ago was patting HOFFMAN on the back as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency, has turned from him, and is now bowing and scraping before HANCOCK, "in whose name there is a charm, as well as an encouragement, for the popular mind."

Montgomery, Ala., boasts of a mule used to draw a hose-cart. It asserts that, no matter where the mule is when the fire-bell rings, he takes the nearest route, under full gallop, for the engine-house, places himself in position for the harness, and as soon as he is hitched up speeds away to the fire with all his might.

Justice BRADLEY, of the United States Circuit Court, at New-Orleans, has approved the report of JOHN B. WELLER, Master in Chancery, that Mrs. MYRA CLARK GAINES is entitled to $125,000 from the City of New-Orleans, and that she is also entitled to what she claims in the case of GAINES vs. CHEEVER and others, for rents and profits.

The Democratic Committee of Chester County, Pennsylvania, have published an address flatly repudiating the accept-the-situation plank of the platform adopted by the State Convention, as an unwise and unauthorized departure from the position heretofore avowed and maintained by the Democracy of the country and the State. They say that there must still be a white man's party.

When JEFF. DAVIS made his treasonable speech in Augusta, Ga., he was dressed in a suit of gray, not unlike the cloth worn by the rebel soldiers in the war, and when he closed cheer upon cheer rent the air, and he retired amid such shouts of applause as Augusta has seldom heard. And yet we are told that he speaks only for himself, and is not a representative of any considerable portion of the Southern people.

If the Democratic Party shall nominate a man for the Presidency who is worthy of Southern support, the New-Orleans Bee thinks it is probable he will receive it; but it adds that the Southerners would be untrue to those who "laid down their lives in defense of the Constitution," untrue to themselves and untrue to their posterity if they were to recognize the rightfulness of amendments which have never been lawfully adopted, or acknowledge that they are final and irreversible.

These Democrats are a queer lot. Here are Democratic "friends" of Gov. HAIGHT, of California, accusing him openly of paying his subscription for a monument to the memory of his friend, Senator BURNETT, out of the State secret service fund, and also of paying the $1,000 with which he headed the subscription in behalf of the impecunious silk manufacturer who gave the State a flag, out of the same fund, after the Legislature had refused to pay the man anything. We hope these accusations against the Democratic Governor are untrue.

The State Convention of "the Union Republican Party," of Maryland, which was held in Baltimore on Thursday, recommended the following ticket to the people: For Governor, JACOB TOME; for Attorney-General, GEORGE A. PEARRE; for Controller, J. HENRY SELLMAN. The regular Republican State Convention has not yet been called. This Convention is an independent body, which merely suggested measures by which all the elements in the State opposed to the Democratic Party might be brought into one organization, and made to work harmoniously together.

And now the Richmond Whig taunts DAVIS, TOOMBS and STEPHENS with being in apparent comfort and luxury while the fortunes of tens of thousands of Southern families were utterly ruined in the war, compelling them to live now as best they can. It says that the poor, hard-working, suffering masses of the South have sacrificed as much to these gentlemen, to their egotism and their political dogmas, as they should content them, and that it is cruel to seek to lay new burdens upon them, and invite them to incur new risks and hazards.

The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser has gone into hysterics over Gen. SHERMAN's letter. It rails about his "impudent egotism, unpardonable insolence, and contemptible puerility, and says that the times have so changed that here is a military man of secondary fame, at best, but apparently so vain-gloriously puffed up, and so careless of the maxims of our forefathers, that, as it afraid he might perchance be nominated for the Presidency by one of the political parties, or that he might be raised up in the arms of the whole nation and placed in the seat which ought to mark him as the foremost citizen among forty millions of freemen, that in brusque and indecent language he declines beforehand to incur such obligation as his country might seek to impose upon him. And it wants him cashiered from his command and dismissed the public service forever. Probably there was not a day from 1861 to 1865 when this same hot-headed writer did not wish Gen. SHERMAN removed from his command even more heartily than now.

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

Mr. Cyrus Field and the Associated Press.

OFFICE NEW-YORK ASSOCIATED PRESS, NEW-YORK, June 16, 1871.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Yesterday's issue of Mr. CYRUS W. FIELD's newspaper pamphlet, as "The End of the Cable Controversy," some disconnected letters, from several parties, at dates varying from the 14th of December last to the 6th of June inst. How these can "end the cable controversy" is difficult to understand, in view of the fact that eight out of the thirteen letters published have no reference at all to that subject.

In a letter to Mr. FIELD, written for publication, (as he was advised,) dated the 6th of May, I charged that he had in his possession a written statement from Mr. WEAVER, the London Manager of the Cable business, acknowledging that our messages had been thrown out of their proper order on the Cable files under Mr. WEAVER's instructions, without our consent or knowledge, to our injury, and in contravention of law, the rules of the cables, and the principles of commercial honor and good faith.

Mr. FIELD did not deny—he never yet denied—that he had Mr. WEAVER's confession in his hands at that time. Yet he refused to give us that, or any satisfactory answer to our complaint. He simply resorted to trickery and prevarication to keep us at bay until Mr. WEAVER could arrive in New-York, and substitute a less objectionable, because less truthful, statement than the one he had mailed to Mr. FIELD.

We were not satisfied to submit to this, and Mr. WEAVER found our charges published when he arrived here. Apparently, in reply thereto, a letter from Messrs. WEAVER and MAYER was issued, which showed the necessity for the fifty-word rule, of which we had never complained; but not one word was said in it regarding the practice which led to the "controversy"—the unlawful manipulation of our dispatches. We responded, showing that the cable people were attempting to dodge the issue. When Mr. FIELD's office, in a letter of May 14, declared that the dispatches, the delay of which we complained about, never passed over their lines, or any which they control. This is as far as Mr. FIELD ventured to go in the "controversy." We showed that the Newfoundland Company, of which he is the representative here, is agent for all the cables; and that all business of the Cable Companies, in the United States, is transacted by Mr. FIELD's office, which takes our money, has up to this time received and forwarded our messages, receives our complaints, and does business under a sign bearing the inscription, "Atlantic Cable Company."

As it was impossible for Mr. FIELD to avoid or deny any longer, he did not attempt further answer to our complaints, but proceeded to have printed and circulate privately some correspondence which, as before stated, has little or no bearing upon the "cable controversy"—eight of the thirteen letters published not referring to that subject at all. The public should know that while the cable representatives were seeking to convey the impression, in their published letters, that our charges were not admitted, and not sustained by the facts, Mr. WEAVER's confession, as made before two competent witnesses in London, and by them transmitted to us, was repeated twice, to gentlemen of responsibility, who had a right to know the facts, and whose evidence on the subject we can produce when necessary. An equally candid statement of the case, in writing, with some guarantee for our protection in the future, would have ended the "cable controversy" before it was begun.

As an interview between the Executive Committee of the New-York Associated Press and Mr. FIELD, on the 9th inst., the latter, after attempting to hold that our charges of bad faith in cable management were absolutely false, ended by admitting that a regular system of discriminating against Press business had been pursued, and claimed that it was done by order of the London Board of Cable Directors. Mr. FIELD, having first denied responsibility, then denied the act, and finally put in a plea in justification, now stands in the position of that defendant who, in answer to a suit for breaking a neighbor's borrowed kettle, plead that "he never borrowed the kettle; it was broken when he got it, and it was sound and whole when he returned it."

Mr. FIELD's paper cannot better Mr. FIELD's cause by "abuse of the plaintiff's attorney," and every gentleman will recognize that the old matter between Messrs. WEAVER and WILSON was settled long ago by our prompt, full and voluntary withdrawal of charges, which were made upon erroneous information. If that case could affect the one now in hand, it would prove our right to careful attention in any matter where we insist on the correctness of our position, because it shows our readiness to acknowledge an error when convinced of it. But even, if that case could be considered as impeaching our testimony to the charges now under consideration, it cannot affect the credibility of Messrs. WEAVER and FIELD; and it is upon their testimony, and their own office records—not ours—that we have brought and proved the charge that our business has been discriminated against in violation of acts of Parliament, commercial honor, and the repeated personal assurances of Messrs. FIELD and WEAVER.

Finally, Mr. FIELD produced a letter from one GEORGE STOKES, offering him $600 per day for certain exclusive privileges over the cable. If that letter is designed to show that Mr. FIELD cannot be bought for $600 a day, I admit the fact at once. Without intending any imputation upon Mr. FIELD's integrity, I have too much faith in his sagacity to suspect him of such folly. "In for a penny, in for a pound"—and the same criminality that would be requisite to earning the $600 bribe could just as well command its tens of thousands. The distinction between the Stoker proposition and mine of December last, seeking precedence for three commercial dispatches, is this: My suggestion was made openly, officially, in the emergency, caused by the breaking of the English cables, for the public protection, and in the public interest. No other is made, secretly, in a purely personal interest after the emergency had passed, and when the arrangement would be simply a fraud upon the public. There is one point of resemblance between STOKES's letter of the 4th of June, and mine of Dec. 13. The former was written at the suggestion of Mr. FIELD, and mine was written at Mr. FIELD's invitation, after a personal interview in the presence of Gen. ECKERT, at which I had made the suggestion verbally. Fortunately I took care to address my note not to him alone, but to "Hon. WM. ORTON" and "Mr. FIELD." I had then a premonition that Mr. FIELD might at some time pretend that I had sought to bribe him, and I took care to accept his invitation in such method as would protect myself.

STOKES's statement (printed and secretly circulated by Mr. FIELD) that I have "a very near relative in the telegraph, commercial news business, transmitting messages, reporting, &c., &c., is simply an impudent falsehood, as Mr. FIELD knows perfectly well. I have a connection who happens to be a rival in one branch of his business, but the modest Mr. STOKES, though he has not now and never has had any experience in peddling commercial news stolen from the Associated Press. He is a gentleman, and cannot lie. I accept with confidence, therefore, his assurance that he has never been engaged in reporting either commercial or political news, by cable or otherwise. On the contrary—with a delicacy which I fear Mr. STOKES cannot appreciate, although it will be clear enough to every gentlemanly instinct—he has carefully abstained from such reporting when it offered profit, simply because he foresaw that any other course would, because of his relation to me, compromise me unjustly where I would fail of opportunity to show that I was in no sense responsible for his independent business relations. When Mr. FIELD again fires up his engines of vituperation let him try to get a little better stoker.

Very respectfully,
J. W. SIMONTON, General Agent.

Wash vs. Wash.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I cut the following from your paper of yesterday:

SENTENCES BY RECORDER HACKETT.—At the Court of General Sessions, before Recorder HACKETT, yesterday, HELEN MILLER, an expert thief, was tried on a charge of stealing two microscopic stands from the office of Dr. WM. H. HOLL, at No. 24 West Twenty-second-street. She was sent to State Prison for five years.

No doubt this was a righteous sentence—certainly it was not too severe for an "expert thief," and I am, for one, rejoiced that HELEN has gone where, for the next five years at least, she will be unable to put in execution any felonious designs on my microscope stands or other portable property. But last Winter Recorder HACKETT had another "expert thief" before him for sentence—a thief in whom, in experience, the fair HELEN would scarcely presume to "hold a candle"—and who would disdain to sell his dainty fingers with any such vulgar plunder as a "microscope-stand." I refer to the distinguished Mr. CHAUNCEY JOHNSON, whose case I cited in my previous communication, written in reply to Mayor HALL's challenge to "any citizen" to "recall the case of any desperado or culprit whose crime (unless shrouded in impenetrable mystery) has not for years and years been as exemplarily dealt with as criminals are now." When Mr. JOHNSON jaunty stepped up to the Recorder's dread tribunal to receive the sentence of the law for the audacious robbery in which he had been detected, and to which he had pleaded guilty—with no shroud of mystery surrounding his crime—with his record of repeated convictions and imprisonments within the knowledge of the Court and the District-Attorney—I ask once more, why it was that one year's imprisonment at Sing Sing was considered sufficient to satisfy the demands of justice, and why it is that that blind goddess now exacts a sentence of five years in the case of HELEN MILLER? What are Mr. JOHNSON's "ancillary qualities?" In whose favor have those qualities been exercised, and in what peculiar channel? Needless to say that I do not ask these questions of Recorder HACKETT, but of Mayor HALL, who, as the bold champion of municipal association, has thrown his gauntlet into the arena, and who, I trust, will not take refuge in silence or evasion when his gage is hitched to HELEN MILLER.

NEW-YORK, Friday, June 16, 1871.

Mr. John V. Gridley and the Tammany Republicans.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I find in your paper of the 15th inst. that a person calling himself "Anti-Tammany" has used my name in connection with other persons as holding office or receiving pay under the Tax Commissioners, while Gen. ARTHUR and others resigned. I desire to state to the writer of that article that it is entirely false, and I challenge him to the proof that I have ever either directly or indirectly held any office, or have ever received any pay from any office, under the control of any mixed or Democratic commissions.

Yours truly, JOHN V. GRIDLEY.

MARINE DISASTER.

Wreck of the Kentucky, of San Francisco—All Hands Lost.

From news received from Fiji, via Sydney, New South Wales, we learn that the brig Kentucky, owned by Capt. WELLINGTON, of San Francisco, was wrecked on one of the islands, when on her way to Queensland. It is believed that all hands perished. The Captain, who had been married a few days before leaving this port, had his wife on board. The vessel was chartered by Messrs. COLLIS, STEWART & Co., of San Francisco, and the entire cargo, amounting to $16,000, belonging to them, was a total loss. The vessel was insured for one-fourth of her value, and there is a partial insurance on the cargo in the Merchants' Mutual and California Insurance Companies. The Kentucky left San Francisco Jan. 14, for Brisbane. The Kate, a small cutter, departed from Fiji in search of another wrecked vessel found on April 1, an American pine mast, which had been cut away about six feet above the deck. It appeared to be the mast of an American schooner. On April 9 the master of the cutter received from parties ashore part of a quarter-board, with a portion of the name inscribed on it, as follows: "KENT," and a part of the letter "U" broken off. A number of other articles evidently belonging to a vessel were recovered at the same time. Subsequently the remainder of the board, with part of the "U" and "CKY," was picked up, and many pieces of the wreck. There was hardly the shadow of a hope left that any of the crew were living.

CHARGE OF STATUS IN BELLIGERENT STATES.

Stephens Lacy Sands vs. The New-York Life Insurance Company.—The defendants, on the 28th January, 1860, insured James Sands' life for $5,000. The premiums on this policy down to and including Jan. 18, 1861, were paid to James M. Muldon, the defendants' agent at Mobile. The next payment, Jan. 18, 1862, was paid to the same man, without objection, in Confederate notes. In July, 1862, Sands died. As late as Aug. 27, 1861, three days after the proclamation of non-intercourse, the defendants wrote to Muldon as their agent, requesting him to do certain things. This suit was brought on the policy, and the defense was first, that the breaking out of the war, and the issuing of the proclamation of the President on the 16th of August, 1861, destroyed the original contract of insurance, or, at least, rendered unlawful its preservation from forfeiture by further payment of premiums; second, that the same circumstances revoked Muldon's authority as agent; and third, that the payment of Confederate money was no payment. On the first two points the referee found for the Company, on the last he found against them. On the whole case he found against the plaintiff, and the plaintiff appealed. On behalf of the plaintiff, it is argued that an insurrection is not war, except so far as the Government chose to recognize it as such. That the act of July 13, 1 as high houses than he bargained for—as likely to come from his own Confederates.

In Gold was only the Foreign Exchanges assumed considerable firmness, and the London rates were 110¼@110¾ ₱ cent. for 60 days Bills, and 110¾@110¾ for short sight. The Public Funds were firm in price, but the offerings and actual business at the Boards were unusually light. In the Southern State Bonds, the party in Tennessee moved up the price to 72¾@73¾ ₱ cent., a rise of 2@2½ ₱ cent. since yesterday. In the Pacific Bonds the changes are not important. The First Mortgage of the Central is 103 ₱ cent.; Unions, 93; Missouri Pacifics, 71 ₱ cent.

There was a general break in the Railway Stocks this afternoon as compared with the last prices of yesterday, and in some of the Western Roads, like Union Pacific and North-west Common, the depression was marked, and the sales at declining figures quite large. There is much surprise expressed at the heavy fall in North-west since the transfers closed day before yesterday, and the talk of a new Bull combination to put the Stock up has little or no effect to stay the decline. The fall of 2 ₱ cent. in Union Pacific is only an incident in the movement of one of the lighter "fancies" of the Exchange Board list, and we pretend surprise or explanation that it should go down today, any more than when it went up with a rush several weeks ago. Ohio and Mississippi shares are also very weak, and rather pressed on sale 9 ₱ cent. lower than during the April and May speculation. The St. Paul Stocks are neglected, and New-York Central and Scrip but indifferently supported. The best sustained pointsare Rock Island and Lake Shore, the former selling up to 120¼ ₱ cent, while Lake Shore was 114@114⅛ ₱ cent. The Coal Stocks were fairly supported, as compared with yesterday. The following notices in regard to Harlem has been posted at the Exchange:

NEW-YORK, June 15, 1871.

The New-York and Harlem Railroad Company will sell, on Thursday, the 22d inst., through Messrs. BARTON & ALLEN, at the first regular session of the Stock Exchange, 10,000 shares of the common capital stock of the Company, ex dividend, being part of the 40,000 shares authorized to be issued by the Board of Directors, meeting on April 11, 1871, in lots of 500 shares.

By order of C. VANDERBILT, President.

At the late Boards the following quotations were made as compared with Thursday night. Gold left off steady at 112⅜ ₱ cent.; Exchange firm; Money easy at 3 to 5 ₱ cent. on call loans; the Railways feverish and for the most part weak:

We understand that the Land Grant Loan of $1,500,000, brought out last Saturday by Messrs. J. & W. SELIGMAN & CO., for account of the Atlantic and Pacific Company, at 77 ₱ cent. and interest, or at 80 ₱ cent., including the 3 ₱ cent. July coupon, in gold, has already been placed to the amount of $660,000.

The semi-annual interest on the First Mortgage Bonds of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, the Western Pacific Railroad Company, and the California and Oregon Railroad Company—all of which are now consolidated under the first-named title—will be paid in gold, without deduction of income tax, at the Banking-house of FISK & HATCH, No. 5 Nassau-street. Schedules of coupons may be handed in previously, for which checks will be given July 1.

The July Half-yearly Interest on the Public Funds of the United States, which will probably be prepaid, if demanded, next week, without rebate, amounts as follows:

Three ₱ cent. on $1,014,000, U. S. 5-20s	$15,210,000
Three ₱ cent. on $64,878,100, U. S. 10-40s	1,946,343
Two and a Half ₱ cent. on $20,000,000, U. S. '62s, '64s	500,000
Total	$17,656,343

If the whole of this were called for before the close of July, the present Treasury Gold balance in the ownership of the Government would be reduced by the July Interest about $9,000,000, that is, in excess of the probable July Customs at all the ports, but the chances are that, as usual, nearly $4,000,000 of Interest uncalled for will go over into the month of August. After the first week in July the Customs receipts will no doubt keep pace, day by day, with the Interest payments, if not in excess.

The return from the Bank of England for the week ended the 31st of May gives the following results when compared with the previous week:

Wkly. average	£3,068,200	Decrease	£41,133

Other securities	17,238,205	Increase	158,113

The amount of notes in circulation is £24,209,050, being an increase of £956,005; and the stock of bullion in both departments is £24,944,996, showing an increase of £999,887 when compared with the preceding return. Subjoined is a comparison of the present position of the Bank of England and the prices of Consols and French Rentes with the corresponding week of last year:

FORM OF FIVE PER CENT. BOND.

INTEREST | FUNDED LOAN OF 1881 | 5 PER CENT.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

ARE INDEBTED TO THE BEARER IN THE SUM OF .....DOLLARS.

THIS BOND is issued in accordance with the provisions of an Act of Congress entitled "An Act to authorize the refunding of the National Debt," approved July 14, 1870, amended by an Act approved Jan. 20, 1871, and is redeemable at the pleasure of the United States, after the 1st day of May, A. D. 1881, in coin of the present standard of the United States on said July 14, 1870, with interest in such Coin, from the day of the date hereof, at the rate of FIVE PER CENTUM per annum, payable quarterly, on the 1st days of February, May, August and November, in each year. The principal and interest are exempt from the payment of all Taxes or Duties of the United States, as well as from taxation in any form, by or under State, municipal or local authority.

WASHINGTON, ..., 18....

Entered..... Recorded.....

..... Register of the Treasury.

Registered Bonds will be issued of the denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and coupon bonds of each denomination except the last two. The interest will be payable in the United States, at the office of the Treasurer any Assistant Treasurer, or designated depository of the Government, quarterly, on the first days of February, May, August, and November, in each year.

The interest on the Registered Stock of this Loan, it is determined by the Treasury Department, will be paid under the following convenient regulations, thus bringing a Gold Check for the Quarterly Interest, to the Post-office of every holder, free of trouble or expense, dispensing with attendance, in person or by proxy, at the Treasury, for the purpose of receipting for and drawing such interest.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, LOAN DIVISION, May 15, 1871.

It has been determined by the Department to pay the interest on the registered stock of the new Loans (acts July 14, 1870, and Jan. 20, 1871), by check, to the order of the party in whose name the stock is registered, and the check will be transmitted by mail to the address of the holder, unless otherwise furnished. It will be sent to the care of the Assistant Treasurer or depository, where the interest is so to be paid.

It is requested, in order to enable the Department to transmit these checks by mail, that all parties subscribing to the new loan, or having transfers made to them, will furnish their correct post-office address, and advise the Department of any change, at least fifteen days before interest day.

During the fifteen days immediately preceding the interest days Feb. 1, May 1, Aug. 1 and Nov. 1, the transfer books will be closed for the purpose of preparing the checks. If the stock is not presented for transfer previous to the closing, the interest will be paid and sent to the person to whom the transferred certificate was issued, and the assignee must look to that party for the accrued interest to which he may be entitled.

The new certificate issued upon a transfer of stock will bear interest from the first day of the quarter year in which such transfer is made, and will invariably be returned to the party who forwarded the assignment certificates by mail, unless otherwise directed.

Checks issued in payment of interest will bear the following indorsement: "This check is payable on presentation, properly indorsed, at the office of the Treasurer at Washington, the Assistant Treasurer at Boston, New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Charleston, New-Orleans, St. Louis, or San Francisco, or the Depositary at Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, Louisville, Mobile, or Pittsburg."

Should any checks be returned to the Department as "uncalled for," they will be held by the Treasurer of the United States subject to the order of the payee.

GEO. S. BOUTWELL, Secretary.

The whole proceeds of the New Loan will be applied to the payment or redemption and cancellation of the 5-20 years six per cent. bonds, and in addition to these proceeds, the 5-20s are being reduced by purchases, averaging, for two years past, about $10,000,000 per month.

The entire effect, therefore, of the New Loan, in connection with the existing Sinking Fund process of the Treasury, is to reduce both Principal and Interest of the Public Debt of the United States. The Loan creates no additional supply of Government Stock, while the application of the surplus revenue is constantly lessening the Funded Stocks bearing six per cent. Gold Interest.

The policy of the Government since the close of the War in 1865, which left a debt upon the country of $2,755,000,000, and an annual taxation of $311,000,000, has been to reduce steadily both Debt and Taxes; to reduce the Principal of the Debt by actual payments, and to lessen the annual burden of Interest, and thereby the burden of Taxation, not only through such payments, but by funding the debt at the cheapest rates of interest practicable from time to time, until it is now felt that the very cheapest rates are due to the high Credit, unblemished Public Faith, and vast and growing resources of the country. From $2,755,000,000 the Principal of the Debt has been reduced to $2,260,000,000—both sums exclusive of accrued interest—and from the heavy burden of $151,839,000 per annum, the Interest charge has been reduced to $119,790,000 per annum; while the annual taxation, under the Internal Revenue system, which the necessities of the War and the Debt thereby created rendered necessary for at least a short series of years, has been reduced from $311,000,000 in 1865-66 to about $154,000,000 per year in 1870-71, (estimating for the highest probable collections in the current month, the last of the Fiscal year,) or less than one-half the first named sum. And in the year 1871-72 a further reduction of $28,000,000 will come in under the Act of July, 1870, so as to give only $126,000,000 for the year, or about two-fifths the maximum of 1865-66.

By the successful refunding of the Public Debt at moderate rates of Interest, and by continued economies in the expenditures of the Government—which, in two years, from March 4, 1869, to March 4, 1871, amounted to $126,700,949, or an average saving per year of $63,350,474—it is believed that nearly the entire system of Internal Taxes can be dispensed with in a few years, or so much of it as requires the machinery of District Assessors and Collectors.

The Secretary of the Treasury has just published the Monthly Schedule of the Public Debt to June 1, from which it appears that he has further reduced the total of Funded Gold-bearing debt since May 1 by the sum of $5,000,000 by purchase of United States 5-20s for the Sinking Fund, and reduced the 5-20s by the further sum of $9,317,400 by conversion into the New 5 ₱ Cents. The whole Funded Debt now stands, $1,894,128,750, as against $2,107,846,150 two years ago when the present Administration came into office. Adding to these sums the net Circulation of the Treasury, (that is, in Greenbacks and Greenback Certificates, after deducting Gold and Currency on hand,) the following is the comparison of Debt of all kinds, at present, and at the close of the War, and in 1869:

	July, 1871.	March, 1869.	June, 1871.
U. S. Stocks	$1,894,128,750	$2,107,846,150	$1,894,128,750
Circulation	356,981,168	356,246,864	356,981,168
Total	$2,251,109,918	$2,464,093,014	$2,250,109,918

The following table affords a classification of the Funded Stock (in Gold) of the United States, as at present outstanding:

New Fives, '81	5,117,000	3,100,000	8,217,000
Total	$1,130,046,750	$594,089,000	$1,724,135,750
Total March 4, 1869			2,107,846,150
Reduction of Funded Debt			$383,710,400
Yearly Gold Interest charge, 1869			$124,255,800
Present yearly charge			111,615,900
Reduction in Interest Charge			$12,639,857

The proposed further reduction of the annual interest charge upon the Public Debt by refunding is as follows:

By exchange of $700,000,000 United States six per cents for new four and a half per cents of 1891 | 4,500,000
By exchange of $700,000,000 United States six per cents for new four per cents of 1907 | 14,000,000
Total saving per annum by refunding | $23,500,000

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The French Government will probably remain at Versailles until October. The trial of ROCHEFORT, OSSI and ROESSEL, by court-martial, will take place next week. M. BAIRE has proposed a prolongation of the power of the Assembly and of President THIERS for two years, but it is said that the motion is regarded as inopportune. There are now 60,000 troops in Paris, under Gen. D'ARNISCHALD. Gen. CLERNHARD remains at Versailles. DOUAY has gone to Lyons, and is to disarm the National Guards in the Valley of the Rhone. All the leading towns of France are to be garrisoned. BISMARCK has promised to reduce the German army of occupation. Some of the leading newspapers of Paris have constituted themselves an election committee, for the support of non-partisan candidates, though some of the Republican editors, it is said, refuse to indorse the candidates thus far presented by the Committee. Gen. LA CECILIA has been arrested, and it is also reported that PYAT has been taken, disguised as a priest. The International Society has issued a proclamation, declaring that the Commune is not conquered, and accepting the responsibility of the Paris conflagrations, &c.....The triumphal entry of the German Army into Berlin and the inauguration of the statue of FREDERICK WILLIAM III. took place yesterday, and was a very brilliant and imposing demonstration. The statue was unveiled by the Emperor, after which honors were conferred upon several of the officers who had greatly distinguished themselves in the late war. In the evening there were illuminations and popular rejoicings.....Fourteen persons have been drowned by an accident at Moray Frith.....Miss RYE is on her way to Canada with 115 children .....When VICTOR EMMANUEL goes to Rome the Pope will go to Corsica.

GENERAL.

The warehouse of H. M. VAIL & Co., in Goshen, Orange County, was entered by burglars on Thursday night, a safe blown open, and securities amounting to $25,000 and about $100 in coin stolen.

A committee has been appointed by the Boston Common Council to confer with the United States Commissioners and the authorities of Philadelphia in relation to the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of American independence.

Several days ago the trustees of Odd-fellows' Hall, in Washington, refused to rent the hall for a pugilistic exhibition, and now the lower branch of the Territorial Government has passed a resolution directing the Superintendent of Police to prevent any such exhibitions until the passage of an act regulating the same.

The railroad excitement at Chattanooga is unabated. On Thursday about 120 employes from Alabama seized a locomotive and two cars and went down the Chattanooga and Alabama Railroad. The locomotive and cars were under attachment, and pursuit was made, but the result is unknown.

The Columbia River is overflowing the lower part of the City of Portland, Oregon.

The preparations to celebrate the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, today, in Boston and Charlestown, promise an unusual display.

At the Cabinet meeting yesterday a dispatch from Admiral RODGERS was read, giving an account of a fight between the Chinese on the Corean peninsula and the combined American and European forces. Admiral RODGERS was conveying to Corea a number of Coreans whom he had rescued from shipwreck. The boats' crews from the French, English, Prussian and American vessels on this mission were fired upon by the Chinese. A fight ensued, in which the Chinese were repulsed. Gen. ROSECRANS intimates that the conflict would be renewed next day.

MICHAEL FRANKSON was executed at Ithaca, yesterday, for the murder of JONATHAN LUNGMIR and Mrs. LUNGMIR, which crime he yesterday confessed to the Sheriff he had committed.

FRANK PULLEN, of Cambridge, Mass., a brakeman on the Hartford, Providence and Fishkill Railroad, fell between the cars at Plattsburg, on Thursday night, and had both legs crushed.

The Papal Jubilee began yesterday, and was very generally celebrated by the Roman Catholics in this City and country.

The Ring and the Park.

Mr. PETER B. SWEENY, President of the Department of Public Parks, has presented a long report of the operations of the Department during the past few months, which is mainly devoted to the most mean and paltry abuse of his predecessors. The bad taste of such a proceeding never occurs, of course, to the member of our City Government. The gentlemen who preceded him had enjoyed for years the respect and confidence of the community. They had employed from the beginning two artists of national reputation—Messrs. VAUX and GUESTON—and these artists had drawn on the rough surface of our island a picture of surpassing rural beauty and variety, which will delight our descendants, and be remembered to the honor of Col. STREBBINS, Mr. ANDREW H. GREEN, and their colleagues, generations after the "Ring" and its evil works are forgotten. The Board of Commissioners had guided this labor of beauty for years with the utmost fidelity and honesty. Mr. SWEENY, entering on his new duties in their place, has not a word to say in their favor, or of the accomplished landscape architects who have given this City so much pleasure and beauty.

If it was necessary for him to know how a gentleman writes under such circumstances, he should have been allowed to see beforehand Gen. MCCLELLAN'S Report on the Docks, which advocates much greater reforms, but never once alludes to the mistakes of others, and preserves throughout a thoroughly wise, moderate, and sensible tone. The greatest fault which Mr. SWEENY can find in the old Commissions is one inexplicable to a member of the City Ring—that they did not provide comfortable offices for themselves. This, of course, he will immediately correct. It is very easy for any one to take up a half-finished plan, as he does with the various buildings and improvements of the Park, and find defects here and alleged extravagance there. The true test is, as to extravagance, what are Mr. SWEENY and his associates spending by the month, and, what did the old Commission spend? Not a word do we find in Mr. SWEENY'S long report on this important financial topic. All that we can discover from the other reports of the City officials is that the Park calls for $500,000 cash, and $2,000,000 bonds. Whether this will represent the limit of its expenditure we greatly doubt.

We trust that some member of the old Board will early make a careful comparison of the relative expenditures of the two Boards. Mr. SWEENY is notoriously going on as if he had a bottomless purse. The former Board spent money carefully and wisely. An interesting passage of the new report is devoted to "Palæontology." Mr. SWEENY, as a practical man, is shocked to find a certain building which is to be devoted to "so-called Pre-Adamite animals," Mr. SWEENY apparently believing that the races of all living animals came into the world with Adam, while the terrible Ichnotherio and Elephantis and antiquissimi prowled and crawled about the Garden of Eden just before our first ancestor. But to his mind, a living dog is better than all dead crocodiles, and he will have none of your Palæontology, and sees no use in it. It probably had never occurred to his mind, in his important duties of the Ring, that a considerable circle of cultivated men in all civilized countries believe that no science throws more light on the present, or is more instructive to the popular mind, than this very science of fossil animals, and that the Crystal Palace directors had considered it so important as to employ this very Prof. HAWKINS, whom he so unceremoniously ousts, to furnish one building with casts of the restored animals. Mr. SWEENY'S sneer at the "so-called Pre-Adamite animals" only proves that he is almost as illiterate a man as TWEED or HALL.

Mr. SWEENY has apparently made a new classification of animals in his Arsenal museum, which will be highly interesting to savants. One department, we are told, is devoted to the "Carnivora," and another to "the wolves and bears"—the latter being probably classed with the Frugivora, on account of their fondness for berries. One can fancy what the remaining classifications will be. Mr. SWEENY dwells with much pride on the new Natural History Museum, omitting to mention that his Department has no more to do with it than with the Cooper Union, the Board of Parks only providing a portion of a building for it.

We hear with dread of the "improvements" which this new Board are carrying out in Central Park. Mr. SWEENY has no more conception of the true idea and meaning of this exquisite ground-painting than he would have of the mysteries of TITIAN'S coloring, or the perspectives of TURNER'S landscapes. He may botch and mar it in a way which no future repentance can remedy. We believe—and we are willing to say this in justice to him—that he has the qualities for keeping a small patch of ground, such as TWEED'S garden at the corner of Forty-third-street, in good order. He knows when a road is properly laid, or a flower-bed is well planted. But he knows nothing of the æsthetic idea in a large and complicated landscape like the Central Park. With unlimited power, and a Fortunatus' purse, his Department has certainly improved the various squares and bits of ground over the City, which were formerly such a disgrace. It has spent enormous sums of money, but it has really done something with it. But in our great pleasure-ground we dread every touch of his hand. We shrink from it as we would from that of a man who, we know, has the will to do mischief, and the chance may attempt to do it.

Death Stars.

Late events have so familiarized people with calamity that they have almost lost the habit of being shocked. The delirium which has covered Paris with blood and fire has surfeited the keenest appetite for horrors. The prophet who predicted only a year ago the fate that has befallen that unhappy city would surely have had little honor in his own or any other country. Yet we have seen the world's most brilliant capital, in the very noonday of civilization, given over to massacres and pillage. A spectacle so fraught with wild and fearful interest must dwarf all lesser misfortunes. Before the awful death agony of the Commune, with its wholesale slaughter of men, women and children, shot and bayoneted like dogs in the kennel or flung to a more appalling death in the flames of burning palaces, human life and suffering seem to grow so cheap as scarcely to be worth a thought. Even that most painful episode in all the ghastly story, of the prisoners forgotten in the firing of the Hotel de Ville, and left to perish in their dungeons, scarcely moves us so much as in happier times, the most stereotyped tale of distress. Consciously or not, most people have grown in a measure callous to this excess of misery.

Something of this may be detected in the tone with which the newspapers publish accounts of other less notable events. The time is rife with disaster, and within a few weeks, in different parts of the world, there have been several occurrences of an unusually painful nature, any one of which would formerly have earned sensational prominence. That dreadful epidemic at Buenos Ayres, for example, with its thousands of victims, was probably as dramatic in its way as either of those famous plagues in Florence or London which BOCCACCIO and DEFOE have immortalized. The two disastrous earthquakes in China and the East Indies have been no less noteworthy. Yet each of these extraordinary events has been dismissed with the briefest telegraphic mention, and has attracted the least possible public attention—not so much in New-York, for instance, as Mr. WESTON'S walk, for example, or the unexpected attempt of FISK to say his prayers.

A still more striking example of this general indifference is afforded by the famine in Perdik. Such meagre details as have reached us show that a most heart-rending affliction has fallen upon that unfortunate country. In certain districts, the starving inhabitants were trying to subsist on grass, in others they were selling their children into slavery to save their lives. Elsewhere, hunger had driven the people to the still more desperate resort of killing and eating the children, and in one province it is even said the graves have been despoiled to furnish food for the living. The stories of the Ghouls in the Arabian Nights are not more incredible or more revolting. Nor is there anything recorded in the dark romance of the slave-trade more tragic than the burning of the coolie-ship Dolores Uquera, in mid-ocean, with all its living freight of five hundred captive souls. Yet, we venture to say, the majority of newspaper readers have given scarcely a thought to the immeasurable horror of these two situations, or have dismissed them as of less relative importance than the latest street affray, or political murder. Misery appeals to us in proportion to its nearness, and Paris is more to most of the world than Persia or Buenos Ayres. Possibly with the millennium there will come a cosmopolitan sympathy, or more catholic charity.

"The Path of the Possible" for France.

In 1869 the Emperor NAPOLEON III. had presented to him the alternatives of liberalizing his Government, or foreign war. Failing to try either course, the downfall of his dynasty by revolution was certain. He chose to temporize for a year, giving the people the semblance of liberal reforms, until he found that the morsel only made their hunger greater and angrier; and then, as his devices became more and more transparent, he took the fatal step, and plunged into war. While he was yet hesitating, and before the effect of the elections of May and June, 1869, on the Imperial policy was apparent, M. RENAN, one of the most accurate historians, and one of the most acute and courageous thinkers of France, published in the Revue des Deux Mondes a paper entitled "Constitutional Monarchy in France." It was a philosophic analysis of the cause of events since the revolution of '89, and an eloquent plea to the Emperor to abandon personal government and establish the firm guarantees of a constitutional monarchy. There is in this article, which was re-printed in pamphlet form and widely read, much that bears on the recent past, the present, and the future of France.

M. RENAN traced the ills that have afflicted France, the instability of her Government, the superficial and often deceptive character of her institutions, the terrible possibility of bloody anarchy forever overhanging her course, and the decay in her of the elements of a great nation, to a vital error born in the days of the great revolution, and inherited by two generations since. France "believed," said M. RENAN, "that liberty may be established by the sovereignty of the people and in the name of a central authority, whereas liberty is obtained by small local conquests, one after another, by gentle reforms." The First Empire was the logical consequence of the immense importance attached by Frenchmen to the central Government. "The State established in the French way is too strong; far from guaranteeing all liberties, it absorbs all liberties; its form is either the Convention or despotism." The restored Bourbons fell before the first active revival of the revolutionary idea, which demanded liberty of the central Government. The House of Orleans was undermined by the same restless craving. The Republic failed at the same point, and the Empire succeeded only because it was the idol of a nation, which was distracted from Paris by the splendid illusion of universal suffrage. In 1852, however, the Empire found itself face to face with the old problem. "The Empire was a despotism surrounded by fictions; the representative fictions slew the despotism." At this point NAPOLEON postponed his answer to the fatal questions the country proposed, and turned to war.

It is easy to trace through the late convulsions the working of the idea which M. RENAN follows from '89, and which he styles "the eternal French error of a distributive justice, for which the State holds the balance." The patience of the country under the astounding usurpation of the Favre-Gambetta "Republic," the readiness with which it allows the Assembly, elected to make peace, to contemplate the making of a Constitution, the frenzied effort of the Commune to snatch by violence in Paris the power to impose on France its wild ideas—all are symptoms of the operation of that insane overestimate of the central authority. But these symptoms were accompanied by other and healthier ones. The provinces—which, in May and June, 1869, first gave the Emperor preliminary notice of their growing independence—have slain the Commune; they have fought with Paris and are victorious. And the sentiment which sustains THIERS, however temporary it may prove, however surely it may yield under the discontent which the impossibility of guaranteeing liberty from either Paris or Versailles will occasion, is now very obviously the imperious desire for order, whatever becomes of liberty. Here then, in this momentary suspense of the passion for "liberty through the sovereignty of the people," is an opportunity to begin those measures, possible alike to a republic or a monarchy, which M. RENAN urged on the Emperor, and which must form the first step in the progress of the French people toward freedom not granted, but earned and possessed. Among those enumerated by M. RENAN, are: Decentralization, diminution of government, strong organization of the Commune, the canton, the department; the development of a good primary instruction, and of superior instruction capable of giving to the morals of the educated class the basis of a solid philosophy; the formation of an Upper Chamber providing varied modes of election, and realizing by side of the simple numerical representation of citizens, representation of special interests; neutrality of the Government in social questions; entire liberty of association; the gradual separation of the Church and State—"the condition to everything serious in religious opinions."

This is a formidable programme, but it has a simple principle as the basis of all its suggestions. Who shall say that the writer may not address M. THIERS and the Assembly today, as he did the Emperor in 1869? To reject the advice may be as fatal now as it has already proved to be on one occasion.

Gen. Cochrane and his Tammany Friends.

The World has devoted three columns to the differences in the Republican Party of this City. Like all the articles in the Democratic papers, this one takes a view hostile to the Republicans, who are seeking to effect a purer party organization. That the Democrats should be opposed to such an effort is very natural; that the Tribune should be opposed to it is also natural; but it seems to us that these papers do not manifest much shrewdness in showing thus openly where their sympathies are. The World, the Leader, the Herald, and the whole tribe of Democratic papers, are amusing themselves and gratifying the good Republicans by abusing and misrepresenting the reorganization movement. They seem to forget that many of the Republicans are soldiers enough to know that it is always well to do just what your enemy does not wish you to do.

The World reporter pretends to have had an interview with Gen. JOHN COCHRANE, and his report bears internal evidence of correctness, for we know that Gen. COCHRANE, within a few weeks, was actively engaged in providing for a reorganization under the direction of the State Committee, while the reporter represents him as now utterly denying the existence of any reorganizing power in that Committee. We have no doubt, therefore, that the World reporter correctly states what Gen. COCHRANE says.

Gen. COCHRANE is represented as stating, among other things, that the Republicans in favor of reorganization "have taken the liberty to use GREELEY'S name during his absence, but they know perfectly well that he will ignore them." The protest signed by TOOHEY and Company a few days since, enlarged in forcible language on the alleged attempt of their opponents to use Mr. GREELEY as a figure-head, and gloried in their own committee "with HORACE GREELEY at its head." Let us see how this "figure-head" business really stands. On the one hand, the State Committee, in one portion of its plan of reorganization, having failed to provide for the contingency of Mr. GREELEY'S declining to act, his name was necessarily left out by Messrs. ORTON and SCHULTZ, and this is all there is of the attempt to use him as a figure-head on the one side. But how is it on the other side? The facts are that Mr. GREELEY accepted the Chairmanship of the Twenty-second-street Committee before a reorganization had been ordered by the State Committee. After it was ordered, he desired to take part in it, but declined out of deference to the Committee over which he presided. He, however, offered and urged in his own Committee a resolution acceding to the proposed reorganization, and, when it was voted down, he and the Vice-President, who was selected to make the congratulatory address to him the other evening, agreed that they would never again attend a meeting of that Committee; and yet the names of Mr. GREELEY and Mr. FANCHER are put forward by them as the leaders under whom they claim to be fighting. After this, who should be held guilty of attempting to use figure-heads?

The Benefits of Civil Government.

Our "Ring" rulers have never been deficient in that useful quality known in their own polished dialect as "cheek." But in the way of delicious effrontery, they have never surpassed or equaled the publication of what they call the Mayor's "report." The very notion of calling that a report at all, which is simply a garrulous and not overskillful bit of special pleading, was in itself a stroke of impudence almost amounting to genius. The seriousness with which our Bohemian Chief Magistrate asserts that the Commonality elects the Mayor is, if possible, still finer. As if Mayor HALL does not know, and as if everybody else does not know that he knew, that Mr. TWEED elects the Mayor, and that the Commonality has no more to do with it than the horses in Mr. TWEED'S "palatial" stables. Quite as entertaining is the virtuous indignation with which we are told that the Tax Levy has, year after year, "been accompanied to Albany by a horde of jobbers and claimants who, turned outside (doubtless on the principle of self-defense) by the local authorities, sought to, and sometimes did, impose upon illy-informed rural legislators"—such as Mr. WINANS, perhaps? But the climax of tranquil assurance is reached when our worthy Mayor bemoans the fate of "the restored City Government" as "the legatee of irresponsible extravagance" with the $8,000 window-shades of the new Court-house before him as he wrote, to emphasize the matchless impudence.

However, this is, perhaps, no more than can be expected of one who,

"Everything by turns is nothing long,
And in the course of one revolving moon
Is lawyer, scribbler, demagogue, buffoon."

The ability of a jack-of-all-trades is proverbial, and our versatile Mayor, the modern Admirable Crichton, as his most sympathetic panegyrist calls him, who attempts all things and does all equally "illy," is no exception to the rule. Two statements only we shall here comment on, because they concern the most important part of civic administration, and because the ridiculous air of self-complacency apparent throughout the report is in them offensively intensified. The Department of Public Parks, with much gorilla-like howling and beating of breasts, calls attention to its astounding virtues, and the deficiencies of its predecessors. Chiefly, the Commissioners pride themselves on their improved Police force, whose efficiency is now so great, that ladies may visit the Park at any hour with entire security. On the same day on which this cheering news was made public, and in all the papers which printed it, appeared the account of a most audacious robbery, committed in a public part of the Park, and at 11 o'clock in the morning, right under the vigilant noses of the improved Police. It was doubtless due to the negligence of their predecessors that no similar outrage is recorded under the old inefficient regime.

The Municipal Police Commissioners are scarcely more backward in sounding their own remarkable praises. And side by side with their self-congratulations appeared the suggestive commentary contained in the exploit of Detective JAMES QUIGLEY, of the Twenty-seventh Precinct. Detective QUIGLEY is one of the most recent improvements of the force. Only last January he was appointed, after the complicated test of oaths, examinations, cross-examinations and reports by which the Commissioners insure the capacity and integrity of their officers. He had produced a petition, we must suppose, signed by five respectable citizens, certifying to the fact that JAMES QUIGLEY was "a man of good moral character, correct and orderly in his deportment, not in any respect a violator of law or good order, nor addicted to the use of intoxicating drinks or lawful excesses." He had satisfied the chief clerk and the three surgeons, and even the "quiet and confidential inquiry" of the Captain of his precinct. And so well did he approve himself to his masters, that he was speedily elevated from the dull routine of a patrolman to the more expanded sphere of a detective. Yet, on last Monday evening we find this model policeman indulging in the now familiar recreation of getting drunk and knocking down a young girl in the streets. And the story of that praiseworthy achievement was given just in season to point the eulogy of a system of whose vaunted excellence FITZGERALD, GILLESPIE and QUIGLEY are such admirable examples.

These three cases, occurring within as many weeks, may be only curious coincidences. They are certainly unfortunate for the boastful claims of the Police Commissioners. Mayor HALL'S pettifogging rubbish may impose on his "illy-informed" constituents, but it cannot persuade intelligent people of the beauties of a reform illustrated by facts like the above.

MINOR TOPICS.

Mr. THURLOW WEED will sail for Europe this afternoon in the Manhattan. Although the state of his health is still precarious, his friends have observed with sincere pleasure that he is making gradual progress toward the condition in which they desire to see him. The vexations or disappointments of his old acquaintance have only too much power to cause him pain, and arrest his progress toward recovery; and hence a total change of scene is likely to do him more good than all the skill of physicians. His disorder is chiefly of a nervous character, and prolonged rest would, in the opinion of his medical advisers, restore him to health. While in New-York, the least annoyance to any of his political friends of years ago throws him into agitation; for unswerving fidelity to his friendships, strong and deep sympathies, a warm and feeling heart, and a most generous disposition, are qualities of his nature which much personal suffering has not had the power to weaken. Happily, it has been his lot throughout his long illness to know the solace of attentions such as no stranger's hand could render—attentions which ceaseless and anxious watching could never weary, which have been beyond the risks of time or change, and which were inspired by one of the purest of all human affections—a daughter's love. Life, even in its decline, is not all dark when, as in Mr. WEED'S case, it is sustained by Christian hope and courage, cheered by the good wishes of a thousand friends, and lit with the indomitable the most pious affection that ever animated a woman's heart.

A meeting of merchants and others was held at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday to discuss the subject of the Southern terminus of the Viaduct Railroad, and to urge the importance of commencing the road at the Battery instead of at Chambers-street. Now, before our citizens get into a quarrel about the starting point of the road, would it not be well to settle the point whether the project itself is a feasible or desirable one? Mr. MATHEWS, one of the speakers at the meeting yesterday, said that the engineers of the Viaduct had informed him that its estimated cost, starting from Chambers-street, was sixty million dollars, and that, from present appearances, the City as tax-payers will have to pay about fifty million dollars of this sum. This corresponds with what the TIMES has always stated, that if this costly Viaduct scheme, conceived by the Ring, was ever completed, it would be at the expense of the City. We doubt whether the tax-payers of New-York are prepared to countenance an enterprise which is to cost the City sixty millions of dollars, or more likely twice that sum—and the control of which most inevitably will go into the hands of our City politicians. Besides, there is another objection. Gov. HOFFMAN has just vetoed a bill which only taxed the people of the entire State two millions to build railroads, on the ground that the Legislature had no right to impose such a tax on the people without their consent. If this argument is sound, it must be applied to the Viaduct Railroad.

The Presidential campaign seems to have opened with a good deal of vigor in our neighboring City of Brooklyn. The Republicans of the Sixth Ward over there, had a meeting on Thursday evening, which was unanimous and enthusiastic in favor of the renomination of Gen. GRANT. Rev. Dr. SPRIR, of the Independent, made a very telling speech, in which he ably reviewed the political situation and prophesied that, notwithstanding the minor differences that now divide Republicans, when the time came the party would be found a unit for the renomination of the present incumbent of the White House, for the simple reason that no man could be found who would command half the strength with the people that Gen. GRANT does.

Catholics in this City, and elsewhere throughout the Christian world, yesterday celebrated an event which to them was little less than a miracle, since it never occurred but once before, and its repetition had seemed to be regarded as next to impossible. This was the completion of the twenty-fifth year of the reign of the Pope—the only one of the long line of Roman Pontiffs who, since St. Peter, the founder of the Church, has occupied the Papal chair for that length of time. Intelligent Catholics have no special reason to congratulate the Church upon PIO NINO surviving the average term of his predecessors. He commenced his career as head of the Church with the congratulations of Christendom, as the liberal views he enunciated and the reforms he promised. He had the enthusiastic support of the best disposed, and the good wishes of all mankind. He completes the twenty-fifth year of his reign as a blind worshiper of the darkness and superstition of the middle age, whose worst follies and errors he would imitate, both in Church and State. He has been instrumental in adding new dogmas to the faith, which have caused schisms in the Church, and driven from its ranks hosts of its most eloquent and enlightened disciples. He is hated by his own subjects, and, sitting in his "dungeon," as he calls it, issues his feeble anathemas against the spirit of the age in which he lives, and fruitlessly bemoans the loss of the temporal sovereignty of which he has justly been deprived. If there is anything in store for him in the future, except a still further distract, divide, and confusion the Church of which he is the head, it is not easy to see how it is to be brought about.

The Tammany Society is in tribulation about a Grand Sachem to succeed "Boss" TWEED. It met on Thursday, and after balloting several times, finally had to adjourn without making a choice. No one was found worthy to succeed the illustrious Sachem who has presided as the counsels of the Wigwam for two years past. The founders of the Society, very unfortunately, as it now appears, ordained that no member should be elected to the post of Grand Sachem for two successive terms. Last year the tribe bridged over the difficulty by not going into an election at all, and allowing "Boss" TWEED to hold over; and it looks now as though they would be obliged to resort to the same strategy again this year. Why not repudiate the one-term principle entirely, and make the office hereditary in the Tweed family? Democrats have long since abandoned the original objects and aims of the Society, if it ever had any, insomuch that the Sachems of today are no more like the Sachems of old, than the thieving and besotted Indians of the Plains are like their robust and warlike progenitors. If the tribe will insist upon keeping up the farce of a "Grand Sachem," by all means let them put the biggest thief at the head, and keep him there.

There is no prospect of a settlement of the Methodist Book Concern trouble. The question is again before the public, but this time in an entirely new dress. Dr. LANAHAN is being prosecuted, before the Book Committee, for having applied to the secular Courts for an order compelling the production of the books of the establishment in evidence. The doctor's defense is that, being sued by an agent of the Concern for slander, he called for the books as a necessary part of his defense, and, not being able to get them in the ordinary way, had recourse to the aid of the law. The preparation of the affidavit under which the order was applied for, was left, of course, to his lawyers, and they saw fit to make the application, on the ground that the deponent, as a corporator of the Concern, wished to ascertain if all the property of the establishment had been faithfully delivered under the new charter, recently granted. This, the prosecution asserts, reflected grossly upon the integrity of the Concern, and hence the charge is preferred. The statement which was presented by the defense, yesterday, is worthy of perusal. If it be true, the Book Concern has good reason for wishing to stifle the investigation. If there is nothing wrong, why withhold the books? The public will look with interest for the result of the trial.

Complaints are made to the Police about a man who is going round to the restaurants ordering a good dinner, and then calmly assuring the waiters that he has no money to pay for his entertainment. The detectives have failed to discover this hungry impostor. We believe we can put them on the right track. The man must be Mayor HALL'S mysterious who is blessed "six in a family," and who has naturally accepted several boarding-house invitations in the verge of bankruptcy. Finding all other resources fail him, he has taken to a mode of life which some of Mayor HALL'S Bohemian allies have found practised with moderate success. It must be admitted that the Mayor's six-fold mechanism is the sort of man whom most people would rather keep a week than a fortnight.

The ash-barrel nuisance may seem a very trivial affair when people read about it in print, but there cannot be a doubt that it is one of the causes of disease in the City. All day the refuse of thousands of houses stands simmering under the Midsummer sun, spending carrion flies by myriads, and giving forth the most appalling odors. We know that the City is surrounded and blown under the foetid influence of the Croton water's stagnation, for the Herald has told us so—and that is one reason why we could dispense with the balmy gales which are wafted through the streets from the ash-barrels. Why cannot they be emptied morning and night? It would only take a few of TWEED'S diamond shoe-buttons to pay for the extra work.

The author of the interesting article quoted from the Commercial Advertiser, on Mr. CROMWELL'S death, desires us to correct a misprint in it. The name sketched GRAHAM B. VAN RENSSELAER should have been "VAN RENSSELAER"—a correction which many of our readers have doubtless made for themselves.

YACHTING.

Harlem Yacht-Club Regatta—Swift Sailing in the Second—Heavy Winds and Fine Racing.

The annual regatta of the Harlem Yacht Club, which was to have taken place on Monday last, but was postponed on account of the weather, came off yesterday with great success. The wind was blowing very fresh from the north-west, and a keen contest between some of the crack sloops of the Club was eagerly looked forward to by those who had assembled to witness it.

The Fort Lee appeared off the Club-house some after 10 o'clock, and her well-packed decks showed that the skill and maneuvering of the yachtsman would be keenly watched by many. The entries were: Second class—General Tweed, W. H. Kipp; Favorita, F. Halloran; Maud, W. S. Morris. Third class—W. K. Knapp, D. Fitzgerald; Mary Boone, Commodore Brinkerhoff; Mary Campbell, Morris Campbell; Corrie, Joseph Armitage; Quiz, G. Barnett. Fourth class—Jessie J., W. S. Lockyer. There were no entries in the first class.

The start was made at 11, the Maud and General Tweed being the first to get away, followed by the Mary Campbell and Quiz, close together. The remainder of the fleet got off as a bunch. The course was from the Middle Grounds, or Kills, to Oak Buoy, thence to College Point Buoy, thence to Throgg's Point Buoy and return, a distance of twenty nautical miles. As the boats got away, the Maud led the fleet, and never once in the whole race did she lose her position, although she was followed the entire race very closely by the General Tweed. Shortly after starting, the Jessie J. carried away her jib-halyards, which obliged her to withdraw. The Club flag was hoisted in the following order: Maud, General Tweed, (fifty seconds behind,) Knapp, Mary, Boone, Mary Campbell, (half a minute behind,) Quiz. On the run to College Point the Maud considerably increased her lead, going away from the General Tweed in spite of the heavy sails the latter carried. The Knapp was cleverly passed by the Mary Campbell off Whitestone, but had to yield her old position after passing College Point. While rounding Throgg's Point buoy, the Favorita, which had not displayed any extraordinary sailing qualities, unstepped her mast, and had to be taken in tow.

During the run home the Knapp succeeded in passing the Mary Campbell and Gen. Tweed. The home-stake was reached in the following time and order:

	H.	M.	S.
Maud	1	21	10
W. K. Knapp	1	24	22
General Tweed	1	25	30
Mary Campbell	1	26	15
Quiz	1	3	—

The winners were declared to be the Maud, second class, and the Mary Campbell, in the third class, by allowance of time.

University of the City of New-York—Session of Literary Societies.

The annual reunions of the two literary societies—the Euclean and Philomathean—of the University, were held last evening, at the University on Washington-square.

Both societies assembled in large numbers in the Council-room, and were addressed by Chancellor CROSBY, who recalled some of the reminiscences of his early life at the University, and spoke of the benefit of literary societies, and the polish and culture they give to student life. After the Chancellor's address each Society repaired to its room. At the Euclean Society Room Mr. H. H. Boehm presided. Speeches were made by Rev. Lyman Abbott of the class of '51, Mr. Clapp of '55, Dr. Lidlam of '54, Prof. J. K. H. Wilcox of '66, Messrs. Johnson, Wood, Brush and Spielmann of '67, Rev. Dr. Hawkins of '68, Mr. Dunter of '70, and others. At the conclusion of the President's address by Mr. Rand, a beautiful collation was served. The Bender Euclean prizes were awarded to Mr. AIKMAN, Jr., for his essay entitled "Unsuccessful Reformers," to THEO. F. BURNHAM on "Intellectual Powers of Animals," and to H. M. RAND on "Classical Study."

Dr. BENJAMIN E. ATCHESON, of the class of '54, presided over the exercises of the Philomathean Society. Addresses were made by John F. Otis, George B. Hunter, G. W. HUNT, Chalmers Chapman, Theodore E. Tomlinson, M. D. Rusil, J. C. Conzen and others.

At the conclusion of the speeches the members sat down to a beautiful repast.

Hon. REGINALD SHERRINGTON and Lieut. CRAIG, of the Royal Astrim Artillery, arrived at the Fifth-avenue Hotel on Monday last. The former is a brother of Viscount MACSHERRIE, of Astrim Castle, County Astrim. These gentlemen have been traveling in California, Utah, Jamaica and Canada for the last six months.

Interesting to Mayor Hall.

From the Albany Evening Journal.

Really it is time for Mr. BERGH to interfere for the protection of Mayor HALL. There has recently been no more conscienous and excruciating case of cruelty to animals than the sharp and merciless pricking of his grammatical blunders by the NEW-YORK TIMES. As a rhetorical composition his message is reduced in very unsightly proportions. Considering how he prides himself upon his "elegant style" and how his admirers are accustomed to pick his "graceful English," this dishing up of his clumsy, uncouth, uncouth, unnatural, nonsensical sentences must be mortifying to the great orator and writer of the Ring. That his association with Tammany had corrupted his morals some was plain enough; but that it had carried him to the point of mutilating the Queen's English so outrageously as he and his compatriots plunder the people's pockets, was never quite so apparent as now. His etymology of language is as false as his morals, his syntax as bad as the rest of his taxes.

(Correspondence Springfield Republican.)

This country seems to have been prolific of buffoons, including such notable characters as GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN, Count JOHANNES, and lastly, Mayor HALL, who may be described as a brilliant, versatile, shallow charlatan, sharp to look after his own interests, and able to follow the leadership of stronger minds, but personally a mere cipher. Even his wit is mere trifling, and cannot compare with the Falstaffian humor of JAMES FISK

THE INDIAN COUNCIL.

Characteristic Speeches Delivered by the Chiefs—Subjects—The Government of the Delegates—An Address from Chief Satanta, Chief of the Kiowas—Interesting Scenes.

From Our Special Correspondent.

OSAGE AGENCY, Indian Territory, Tuesday, June 6, 1871.

The General Council of the Indian Territory convened at 9 a.m. yesterday. Indian Superintendent ENOCH HOLE presiding. Delegates from the five great nations, the Cherokees, the Creeks, the Choctaws, the Chickasaws, and the Seminoles, and from most of the smaller tribes resident in the Territory, are present. The Cherokee delegation consists of seventeen members, five of whom are chiefs. Wm. P. ROSS being one of the delegates. The Creek and Choctaw delegation consists of thirteen members each; the Chickasaws are represented by six delegates, the Great and Little Osages by four, and the Seminoles by three. The Ottawas, the Eastern Shawnees, the Absentee Shawnees, the Quapaws, the Senecas, the Wyandottes, the Confederate Peorias, the Sacs and Foxes, and numerous affiliated bands are represented by one or two members each.

As a deliberative body of Indians, assembled in peaceful council to adopt a federal form of government that shall include the whole race, is a novel idea to many Eastern readers, it will not be out of place, before I proceed to give an abstract report of the business transacted at this Council, to hastily sketch a few of the most prominent members. The council chamber, I may remark, is in a large warehouse, well lighted and ventilated, and amply provided with seats. At the upper end a table is placed, covered with an Indian blanket, at which are seated the presiding officer and the Secretary of the Council. As the bewilder gazer has eye over the spacious hall, in which sixty delegates are seated, he cannot but be struck at the various shades of countenance and the strange diversity of costume that meets his gaze. Just to the left of the table the eye is caught by the Osage delegation, with their Interpreter, and two other Chiefs who are supposed to seem in the Council. These, with the exception of the Interpreter, are a robust, noble-looking party of red men, full of native dignity, and dressed with as elaborate display that would not shame the most showy scout in Europe. Their war paint of carmine and blue, replaced twice a day, is unique. At the head of the delegation, the Governor of the nation is seated, JOSEPH GAR-DE-TO-CHAR. This distinguished brave is educated, shrewd and ambitious, and speaks English fluently. But as his nation is not yet ready to adopt the habits of the white man, and JOSEPH fears the loss of influence among his people, if he should venture to lead in his native, he still clings to his blanket and the use of his native tongue. The representative of the Sacs and Foxes is named KEOKUK, a full-blooded Indian, with a commanding head, glossy black curling hair, and dressed in immaculate broadcloth. The most able statesman in the whole council is Col. W. P. ROSS, nephew of the noted Cherokee chieftain, old JOHN ROSS. This gentleman brings great legal acumen, extensive research, and a mind singularly acute and comprehensive, to the work of framing a government. Among others I might mention are S. H. Benge, and Moses Alberty, also of the Cherokees; Thomas Fixico, J. M. Perryman and Okter-Tus-ne-nuche, of the Creeks; Rufus Folsom and Coleman Cole, of the Choctaws; John W. Gregory, of the Wyandottes, Keokuk, Sam Fox, and Hard Rope, Osage; they are all able statesmen, ready in debate, fluent in the use of language, and evincing the utmost discrimination in mastering the phraseology of doubtful provisions. On decorum a party of legislators I never saw in council before. No unseemly noise, not an unparliamentary expression, no bandying of personalities, no filibustering, no disorder. Without disparagement to our own race, I may truthfully say that many august legislative assemblies might take example from this beautiful of despised Indians, and greatly amend their manners.

At 2½ P. M. yesterday, the President called the Council to order with a brief and appropriate address. The Secretary being absent, Mr. GRAVES was elected pro tem. On calling the roll, twenty-seven delegates answered to their names. Before any business was brought before the Council, Gen. SHERMAN, with three other officers, (Gen. MARCY, Col. McCOY and Col. TOURTELOTTE,) were announced. These distinguished visitors were conducted to the President's table, and accommodated with seats by his side, and a delegate called upon Gen. SHERMAN for a speech. The General remarked in response, that he had not come to talk himself, but rather to hear others talk. Still, as it was well known to his Indian friends that he took great interest in their welfare, and had had intimate dealings with a great number of tribes, he thought he could speak to them on several matters of interest, and would, therefore, delay the business of the Council for a few moments. The General expressed his satisfaction at seeing so many intelligent representatives of the Indian race assembled in council before him. He then referred to a former appointment as one of a set of Commissioners to visit the Indians and examine into their condition. While engaged in this labor, he had visited most of the tribes on the Plains, and had his influence with them to induce them to give up their roving, predatory life, and come into the Territory. He regarded the position of these wild tribes as very insecure. In their wanderings over the Plains in search of the buffalo, they frequently come into contact with the whites, and collisions often ensue. A good feeling may, perhaps, exist between the two parties, but misunderstandings will arise, and then trouble is the result. The General illustrated this by citing an instance. A party of Cheyennes or Comanches come across a wagon-train carrying supplies to some mountain post. The Indians are hungry, and ask the teamsters for coffee or for something to eat. The latter refuse; they do not own the goods, and have no right to give them away. This law of property is not very distinct to the understanding of the famishing Indian, and he is, perhaps, tempted to help himself.

The only way to prevent the occurrence of these troubles and save the race from a rapid extinction is to give the Indian a separate country to live in. It he will go there to live, and put himself under the influence of his civilized brethren, the Government at Washington would help him to build a home, teach him to cultivate a farm, and educate his children. The two races cannot live together in harmony; the weaker race must give way to the stronger; barbarism in this age of steam and progress must retire before advancing civilization.

The General dwelt upon the blessings which attended the tribes now living in the Indian Territory. They had adopted the habits of the white man; built them comfortable houses, learnt how to cultivate their lands, had acquired the possession of property, and were showing an intelligence and industry that would soon make them the equal of their white brothers. And why should not the Indian be the equal of the white man? His body is equally robust, and his brain quite as large.

The speaker then vividly contrasted the useful results of a civilized life as compared with a barbarous life. It is said the wild Indian will not work. Why, look at one of the Comanche chiefs on a raiding expedition. He will endure every privation for months, ride 2,000 miles, subsist upon the most unwholesome food, crawl upon the ground like a snake, and then what has he gained by his labors? He had stained his hands with the blood of one or more white settlers, and perhaps ravished some helpless, unoffending white woman, but the whole result of these months of crime and exposure is the two or three miserable ponies he drives before him. Upon this he establishes his claim to be a great warrior. The General could see no bravery in lust and rapine, and denied that the thieving Kiowas were any braver than the peaceful chiefs whom he saw around him.

He then referred to the work that had called this Council together. At their last meeting, in December, they had perfected a constitution for the federative government of all the tribes in the Territory, and now they had again assembled to deliberate. This position is more in accordance as a form of government. The work was one of great importance. To accomplish it it would be necessary to make mutual concessions, to work in a spirit of harmony, to sacrifice some little interest, may be, for the general security than all would gain. You cannot all be Creeks, or Choctaws, or Cherokees, said he. You are aiming to establish a general government, when all your tribes will be merged in one people, and your executive, legislative and judicial functions consolidated in one centre. To accomplish this, certain reserved rights must be conceded, but the increased strength you will acquire, and the stability that will be conferred upon your political and social institutions, will recompense you tenfold for the sacrifices you may be called upon to make. Whatever assistance could be rendered them by Government to enable them to carry out their work of progress, would be cheerfully afforded. School-houses would be built for their children, agricultural and mechanical tools furnished them to build their houses and work their farms, and if they wanted books and preachers and teachers they would be sent to them for the mere asking. The speaker here paid a deserved compliment to Superintendent HOLE, whose humane and intelligent labors in behalf of the Indian race, for a number of years past, have accomplished much good, and are aiding to place the matter on a footing where it will no longer be a cause of trouble to the United States Government.

Their country he justly described as unsurpassed by any the sun shines upon. He regarded it as better than Kansas or Nebraska, and fully equal to Illinois. It now contained a population of sixty thousand persons, and could readily support six millions; all that was wanted was the exercise of useful industry, and the diffusion of intelligence among all the tribes. The General closed by urging upon the Council to take some steps to reclaim the wild tribes, and bring them in from the plains, where they were undergoing rapid extermination.

Gen. SHERMAN was followed by Gen. MARCY, who, on an invitation to speak, dwelt upon the subject of sending Indian missionaries among the uncivilized tribes to endeavor to win them to the adoption of a civilized mode of life. He related that during his travels through the Chickasaw country, he one evening stopped at the house of an educated and highly-respected member of that nation, named ISRAEL POLSON. The subject that was most discussed was reclaiming the savage tribes, and inducing them to take up permanent homes. The first step in the path of civilization is to infuse a love of home, and to secure the taking of this first step the speaker inquired of his host why the Indians did not obtain the aid of missionaries to bring these wild Indians in, and teach them the arts of civilization. The old chief's reply was memorable. He said the whites were so mixed up of rascals and honest men that the Indians did not know whom to trust. The only way to gain an influence over their minds is for the civilized tribes to send a few of their number among them, as their counsel would be more readily listened to. Gen. MARCY knew that the warmest sympathy existed in the minds of his hearers for the unhappy condition of their savage brethren, and he did hope that this General Council would not separate without taking some efficient action to ward indicating these people to change their mode of life.

Interesting speeches were made by several delegates, W. S. ROSS, (Cherokee,) COLBERT FARMER, (Chickasaw,) PLEASANT POARTER, (Creek,) and J. P. RUSSOM, (Choctaw.)

As your reporter was busily at work taking notes of the speeches, seated within a few inches of where Gen. SHERMAN was standing, that distinguished chieftain pleasantly cautioned him to be careful what kind of a report he sent to the Press for publication, as he had been abused by the whole country for a speech attributed to him at New-Orleans which contained sentiments he had never uttered. "Speech-making," observed the General, "is not my vocation, and when I do indulge in a little informal talk, if it is considered worth laying before the world, I want to know no sins but my own to answer for." Your reporter could do no less than invite the General to his room, which happened to be an elegant one, furnished by an enterprising Creek merchant of this place, Mr. P. M. SANGER, for the use of Superintendent HOLE and the only Press reporter of the Council, to hear the report read to him. The General was pleased to accept the writer's invitation, but laughingly said he would trust to his honesty for the correctness of the report.

Toward evening, the General presented himself, and after some interesting talk in relation to his tour of inspection, gave full details of the recent arrest of the Kiowa Chiefs SATANTA, SATANK and BIG TREE, during Gen. SHERMAN'S visit at Fort Sill. This truculent Chief, SATANTA, it would appear, is one whom civilization can never tame. He is treacherous, cruel, and irreconcilably hostile to the white race. On the 4th May he led a party of one hundred Kiowa warriors against a supply-train on the Belknap road, on its way to Fort Griffin, Texas, and murdered ten of the party, one of whom was burnt to cinders at a cart-wheel. This the great Chief regarded as a wonderful achievement, and in his elation was led to boast of his prowess to Agent TATUM and others, while visiting Fort Sill. This boast came to Gen. GRIERSON'S ears, the commanding officer of the fort, and he reported it to Gen. SHERMAN. The rest of the narrative I give in Gen. SHERMAN'S own words: "I was sitting in the porch of Gen. GRIERSON'S quarters," said Gen. SHERMAN, "when it was reported to me that SATANTA had been boasting to Agent TATUM of having robbed a train and massacred a number of teamsters. I determined to put an immediate stop to this, and sent word by an orderly that the General wanted to see SATANTA at his quarters. The Chief came up at this summons, and sat down on the porch. I asked him if it was true that he had been killing unarmed whites, that we could see nothing brave in this, but regarded it as cowardly. I told him if he wanted to fight, we had plenty of soldiers, and we could indulge him with all the fighting he wanted. I had previously learned the full details of the massacre from one of the train men who had served in the Fortieth Illinois, my favorite regiment, and had escaped the massacre, so I knew there was no danger of making a mistake. SATANTA evidently felt uneasy, and at the first chance left the porch and made off to his horse, which was hitched to a tree near by. I ordered GRIERSON to arrest him, and a colored orderly, who was standing by, without a word of command, rushed after the chief, and placing his pistol at his head, brought him back. I now wanted to get the other chiefs, and directed GRIERSON to station a guard in the rear of his quarters, out of sight, and send for SATANK, BIG TREE and BIG HEART. The last named failed to come, but the other two responded, and seated themselves by the side of SATANTA.

Very soon afterward, KICKING BIRD and LONE WOLF came running on to the porch, and Gen. GRIERSON says that the former handed a carbine each to two of the Kiowas, and strung his bow. I did not see this action myself; but, if I had, it is uncertain what I should have done. There was about man for man present, and for a few moments there was imminent danger of a scene of blood taking place. I ordered the guards up, and directed them to arrest the party of chiefs; but KICKING BIRD and LONE WOLF managed to get away. I then ordered SATANTA and SATANK to be placed in double irons, and sent to Texas, where they had committed the murders, to be tried by civil law. I then ordered the garrison out, under Gen. MCKENZIE, to scour the country for SATANTA'S followers, but when I left Fort Sill to come here the party had not been met with."

Gen. SHERMAN gives it as his opinion that these Kiowa chiefs stand but a poor chance of escape with a Texas jury, and the humane Superintendent (HOLE) who had entered with intense interest to the narrative, was constrained to admit that the execution of these murderous chiefs would have a wholesome effect upon the tribe. I may add that we spent a pleasant evening with our distinguished visitors, and that the party started off the next morning on their way to Fort Gibson. The proceedings of the General Council will be the subject of my next letter.

THE FIRE-PROOF MICA LAMP CHIMNEY.

A kerosene-lamp chimney that will not break from the effects of heat or cold.

Millions of families all over the country will hail with delight and satisfaction the introduction of this great blessing.

One hundred millions glass chimneys are broken annually in the United States. With many, the cost of their chimneys is more than the cost of oil. The Mica Chimney costs but a trifle more than the ordinary glass chimney, and is taking their place wherever introduced.

No more accidents or "annoyances from broken chimneys need occur.

This is the only reliable lamp chimney ever produced. Millions of dollars will be saved by their introduction in this country. A trial will convince everyone of the entire truth of this statement.

State rights remaining unsold can be secured from the undersigned general agents for the Company. There is a fortune in each State right. Examine and satisfy yourselves. Circulars sent free upon application.

NEW

THE VIADUCT RAILWAY.

Meeting in Favor of Changing the Lower Terminus to the Battery—Speeches Made and a Committee Appointed.

A meeting was called by some few prominent gentlemen of the City, for yesterday, to be held at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, for the purpose of considering the necessary for the change of the terminus of the Viaduct Railway from Chambers-street to the Battery, and of locating the Custom-house and bonded warehouses on or near the Battery, or upon the water-front in connection with the new system of docks. The preliminaries were skillfully managed, and in such a way as to strike a sympathetic chord in the breast of almost every influential merchant doing business in the lower part of the City. Scarcely one of the importers or shippers down town but daily experiences the inconveniences attendant upon the present location of the Government buildings, and all desire a change if it can be effected. This object of the call attracted their attention, and they doubtless resolved to give the meeting the weight of their influence. Consequently there was a very fair attendance of gentlemen connected with the commercial interests of the City. At 4 o'clock, the hour at which the meeting was called, only Mr. MANUEL SANDS—Tax Commissioner—and Mr. EDWARD MATHEWS, who is largely interested in real estate on the line of the proposed improvement, were present, and the two were engaged in close consultation over a document which Mr. SANDS had produced from his pocket, and which subsequently proved to contain elaborate statistics from the report of Mr. SANDS' Canal Convention at Rochester. Presently Mr. A. A. LOW came in, joined the party, and was treated to a sight of the document. Then Mr. H. C. GARDINER entered, but as he was thoroughly posted with regard to arcade and viaduct railways, he had no cause to examine further, and employed his time in running over his forthcoming speech on the decadence of commerce at this port. Mr. CHITTENDEN, Mr. POTTER, P. M. WETMORE and some fifteen or twenty more gentlemen entered soon after, when the proceedings were begun by Mr. MATHEWS calling the meeting to order, and nominating Mr. A. A. Low as Chairman and Mr. PAUL N. SPOFFORD as Secretary. Mr. LOW, in addressing the meeting, said that as a resident of Brooklyn he should be sorry to see that city follow New-York in the extravagance of her government in the project similar to that of the Viaduct Railway. Yet this matter was one of considerable interest to the citizens of New-York, and might seriously affect the commercial classes. It was evidentiable that there should be means for rapid communication between the extremes of the island, and if it was reversely, and provided the dock accommodations should be far superior to what they were now.

The call of the meeting was then read by the Secretary, when Mr. EDWARD MATHEWS spoke. Mr. SAND'S piece, in which he went extensively into statistics, all of which were familiar to those who attended the Canal Convention at Rochester, and he (Mr. M.) proceeded to read its proceedings—to show that this City was being rapidly ruined by the diversion of trade and population to other cities—all of which was attributable to the want of dock and transportation facilities in this City. He quoted from the document to show that the viaduct would cost about sixty million of dollars, or three million dollars per mile, and that not more than ten millies of this sum could be obtained by private subscription. Consequently the remaining fifty millions would have to be paid for by the citizens in the City. It was therefore unjust to ask these property-owners below Chambers-street to tax them for an improvement from which they would derive no benefit, and the road should be extended so that the southern terminus would be at the Battery. The extension could be made for $1,000,000; or if it was carried to Pine-street, it would cost only $1,750,000. He had very decided objections to the proposed removal of the Custom-house and warehouses to the vicinity of the Battery, not having given this subject much thought, but the new system of docks would prove of immense benefit to the commercial interests of the City. If the road could not be altered under the present charter, application should be made to the Legislature for the extension. He in conclusion moved the appointment of a committee of twelve to carry out the objects of the meeting.

Mr. H. C. GARDINER, who has been identified with the arcade project, then presented some more statistics from the report of the Canal Convention at Rochester, to show the decline of the commercial Metropolis, and paid more attention to the new system of docks than did his predecessor. He told what Baltimore was doing in building splendid warehouses on their river-front, and then illustrated by an oil-painting, elaborately-arranged and massive warehouses, what might be done in this City. If something was not done speedily, New-York would in fifteen years lose her commerce.

Mr. S. B. CHITTENDEN did not agree with the doleful prospect of the future entertained by Mr. GARDINER, and thought that the Chambers-street terminus was a very proper one for the viaduct road, for that would also be one of the terminii of the Brooklyn bridge—a structure that would be the medium of uniting the two cities and eventually cause their consolidation. He said that it was impossible for Brooklyn to build this bridge without aid from New-York, and before the first passenger crossed it the two cities would be under one government.

Mr. HOWARD POTTER spoke in favor of the extension of the road to the Battery and the removal of the Government business to that location. Mr. A. A. Low then, after a few remarks, put the question before the meeting, nominated the committee—the list having been handed him by Mr. SANDS—and the assemblage adjourned. The committee as nominated comprising the gentlemen comprising the following names: Howard Potter, Royal Phelps, Paul N. Spofford, John E. Williams, S. B. Ruggles, Nathaniel Sands, Edward Mathews, S. B. Chittenden, William A. Booth, Jonathan Sturges, M. K. Jesup, H. B. Hyde, W. H. Guion.

OUR IMPERIAL VISITOR.

Change in the Programme—The Admiral General to Convoy the Grand Duke to America—His Scholastic Career—Young Nobleman Eager To Join the Prince's Suite.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg to the Russian Embassy at Washington, state that orders have been recently sent to Cronstadt to hasten the work in fitting out the naval division which is to escort the Grand Duke ALEXIS to the United States. His Imperial Highness has concluded to embark in the Admiral General, iron-plated steam frigate, instead of the Sachtoma, as at first intended, which change of programme will give an additional vessel to the Imperial convoy. The Admiral General is said to be one of the finest ships in the Russian navy, and instructions have been given to have her cabins and staterooms fitted up in the most elegant and luxurious manner, befitting the reception of the illustrious traveler, and the large suite of noblemen and gentlemen who accompany him.

It has been erroneously stated that the young Russian Grand Duke was the third son of the Emperor. He is the second son, the CESAREVITSCH ALEXANDER, or Prince Imperial is the first, Grand Duke ALEXIS next, and then comes the youthful and handsome Prince VLADIMIR, who is now enjoying the hospitalities of the royalty of England at Sandringham House and Windsor Castle. Though of the blood Imperial, the Grand Duke is said to have been compelled by his Imperial sire to pursue the regular curriculum prescribed at the Imperial Marine Academy, and it is also said that the young Prince has not only manifested a great disposition for the acquirement of learning, but has displayed more aptitude than one generally finds in the pampered persons of Prince pupils. Those who have recently seen him speak of him as a fine-looking, tall, soldierly-appearing young gentleman, with a very dignified and commanding presence, though yet quite young. He eschews the ceremonies and pomp of Court as much as Russian etiquette, which is very exacting, will allow him. Prince ALEXIS wears but one decoration, and it generally worn dressed in the uniform conforming to his rank in the Imperial Navy. The fact of his being a Grand Duke of the Empire will not, it is said, have the effect of hastening his promotion in the Russian Navy, where merit alone is rewarded with increased rank. He now holds the position of Commander in the navy, and has won it solely by strict application to his studies and his own individual exertions, unassisted by any one save, of course, the prompting of the best talent in the land employed in teaching him.

Recent letters from St. Petersburg represent that great rivalry seems to exist among the young Russian noblemen desirous of joining the suite of the Grand Duke in his voyage to America. The Russian papers are full of the preparations that are being made both at St. Petersburg and at the naval depot, at Cronstadt, from which port, as is well known, the Imperial frigate and her convoy will sail.

The Erie Litigation—Proceedings Yesterday.

The investigation directed by Judge BLATCHFORD to be instituted before KENNETH G. WHYTE, Master in Equity, at the instance of HEATH and RAPHAEL, English stockholders of the Erie Railway Company, against JAMES FISK, Jr., JAY GOULD and others, was resumed yesterday, at 1 o'clock. The case has been in progress now for nearly three months, and will probably be brought to a conclusion in two or three days more. Mr. E. E. WILLARD, of the firm of WILLARD, MARTIN & BACK, was sworn to the stand yesterday, and was examined in regard to his knowledge of the present owners of the certificates of the 10,000 shares of Erie stock put in his possession in December and January last by GOULD. His evidence occupied some hours in an examination of his books of registry, presenting a lot of dry details, hardly of any public interest. The case is adjourned to Monday, when if, as is anticipated, Mr. SOUTHMAYD, on behalf of HEATH and RAPHAEL, brings his case to a close, evidence will be opened into in the interest of the Erie Railroad.

A Noted Pick-Pocket Caught.

NELLIE FLOWERS, a woman of fine appearance, fashionably dressed, and still seeming to be in the bloom of youth, although old in crime, was caught, yesterday, in the meshes of the law. She has been well known to the detectives for several years past as a most adroit pick-pocket, and when Detective FARLEY, who was looking about him in Broadway, in the afternoon, saw her in a Fifth-avenue stage, he stopped the vehicle and took NELLIE from it, at the same time announcing her character to the passengers. He took her to Police Head-quarters, and had just arrived there when Mr. EZEKIEL SALOMON, a citizen of New-Orleans, who is now temporarily residing at No. 125 Fifth-avenue, came in, and announced that while in the stage his pocket had been picked of a wallet containing $[illegible]. He stated that after he had put his wallet back in his pocket, after paying his fare, the prisoner, who had previously been on the opposite side of the stage, sat down beside him, but he did not miss his property until after she had been taken from the stage. The prisoner was immediately taken before Justice HOGAN, at the Tombs Police Court, where a complaint was made against her by Mr. SALOMON, and she was committed in default of $1,000 bail. When taken below by Detective FARLEY, she found her way without a guide into the doleful Tombs as though treading in accustomed paths. When examined by the Magistrate she gave her name as ELLEN WILLIAMS, and denied all knowledge of the crime with which she was charged.

The Wall-Street Forgery.

At the Essex Market Police Court, yesterday, the case of J. M. CROMBLIEN, a Wall-street broker, charged with forging the name of HEIDELBURG & SONS, Baltimore, for a large amount, was submitted to Judge LEDWITH, and decision reserved. It was charged, on behalf of the accused, that the prosecution is instituted against the prisoner to compel him to acknowledge grounds upon which his wife, who is daughter of the prosecutor, could obtain a divorce, and the allusion to the subject excited such ill feeling as nearly resulted in a free fight, on the adjournment of the Court.

The Crowley Stabbing Case.

Justice BIXBY yesterday dismissed the complaint of TIMOTHY CROWLEY, late an officer of the Twenty-first Precinct, against JOHN SMITH, for stabbing him in the abdomen at a picnic in Funk's Park about a month ago. The evidence showed that CROWLEY forced an entrance into the park, behaved himself like a drunken rowdy, and provoked the quarrel in which he got stabbed. He was been soon dismissed the Police force.

A Car Pickpocket Sentenced.

THOMAS E. HARDY was convicted in the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, on the charge of stealing a gold breast-pin from WILLIAM WENCH, in a Fourth-avenue car, on the 19th ult., and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. HARDY was asked by the Recorder if he had been in State Prison, and he replied in the negative. The Recorder disconcerted the prisoner by immediately producing a photograph of him, which adorned the rogues' gallery, and compelled him to admit that he was an escaped convict.

Fierce Attack Upon a Farmer by an Enraged Horse.

From the Detroit Free Press, June 14.

From several farmers coming into town, yesterday, from the township of Taylor, our reporter learned the particulars of a very exciting affair which occurred in that township, about seventeen miles from Detroit, on Sunday last. A man named PIERCE ANDREWS returned that morning with a young horse which he had purchased at Wyandotte. In riding the animal home ANDREWS had to give him several whippings, and was once or twice run away with, and this when he arrived home he was tired out, and the horse was nervous and excited. There being some goods packed away in the stables, ANDREWS took the horse in on the barn floor to tie him. While so doing the animal bit him, and for this he was soundly belabored with the handle of a broken pitchfork. After being struck several times he broke loose and ran at ANDREWS and struck him down with one of his fore feet. While in this position the farmer received a bad injury from being stepped on, but managed to get up and show fight, still retaining possession of his weapon. The horse reared, kicked and uttered mad neighs, and in a moment struck the man down again. ANDREWS fell close to a partition that that the horse could not get at him well, and here he kept the beast at bay by pounding its legs with the club.

The people at the house had heard the sounds of the struggle, and a hired man and the family were soon around the door. As the horse seemed to quiet down a little, the man shouted to ANDREWS to crawl carefully along to the door. This the farmer started to do, but had not crawled three feet when the horse pounced upon him again, and, this time dislocated his shoulder by a blow of a hoof. The horse then commenced plunging and kicking at everything, jumping at ANDREWS whenever the farmer moved, and in this emergency, seeing that he was likely to be killed, he shouted for the man to get the family out of the yard and leave open the door, supposing that the animal would then go out. This was done, but the horse plunged out and in again with such rapidity that the farmer could not escape, the animal making at him every time he tried it. As a last resort, the hired man loaded an army musket with fine shot, and gave the horse the full charge in the shoulder at short range. The beast went down, jumped up, made a few circuits of the yard, and then leaped the fence into the pasture, and ran until tired out. ANDREWS was badly bruised in many places, had a shoulder dislocated, as stated, and will be confined to the house for some time. The horse received considerable injury from the gun-shot, but it is thought a veterinary surgeon can heal the wound.

Mercantile Library—Fiftieth Annual Report.

From the fiftieth annual report of the Directors of the Mercantile Library Association it appears that the total number of volumes now in the library is 197,637, an increase during the year of 11,416 volumes; making, with the duplicates sold, a total of 12,210 accessions, of which 10,772 were acquired by purchase and 1,438 were contributed. The library is the fourth in size in the country, and is the first in the number of books it puts in circulation. About 800 duplicate books have been sold during the year. The circulation has been greatly extended, 269,034 volumes having been given out, of which 184,789 were delivered at the main library, 83,013 at the branch office in Cedar-street, 19,360 at the suburban offices, and 11,882 at the residences of members. The largest number delivered in one day was 1,737 volumes, and the average daily circulation was 979 volumes. Branch offices have been opened at Jersey City and Paterson. A bindery has been established in the building, and 2,552 volumes have been bound. In the reading-room, 240 newspapers and 204 magazines have been regularly kept on file. Magazines and quarterly reviews are now circulated as books.

The membership has not materially changed. There are 6,901 active members, 4,011 subscribing members; total, 10,912; membership previous year, 10,896. The income of the association for the year was $43,259 61, the largest it has ever received. The expenditures were $42,261 18, of which $21,370 17 were used for salaries, rent, fixtures and running expenses; and the balance, $10,831 01, for the purchase of books and periodicals. The schedule of classes for the year provided for a class in French, one in German, one in Spanish, one in phonography, one in English, one in elocution and two in gymnastics. Ninety-two pupils were instructed; the receipts were $975, expenditures, $665; balance, $310. A new fire-proof building is needed, in which there shall be shelf-room for at least 300,000 volumes, with ample accommodations for cataloguing, binding, repairing and covering the books of the library. The Clinton Hall trustees, by the consent of the two Associations, are laying aside from year to year a portion of the moneys which they control, for the purpose of creating a building fund; but it will be a long time before this fund will be large enough to buy such a site and pay for such a building as is needed. The building fund is $21,614 20.

Gen. Sherman in Kansas—He Refuses to Speak on Politics.

From the Lawrence (Kansas) Journal, June 11.

Gen. SHERMAN, accompanied by Inspector-General MARCY and Col. TURTELOT, of his staff, came up the Galveston line, yesterday, in the Pay-master's car, with Major RANSOM and Col. CHANUTE, of that road. At Ottawa the party stopped for dinner, and nearly the whole town turned out, with brass band at their head, to give them welcome. After dinner a speech was demanded, but Gen. SHERMAN said he was not in politics, and was not going to get in, and had no speech to make.

In this city there was no time for a reception, but the Mayor met the party and conveyed them in carriages from the Galveston Depot to the Kansas Pacific Depot, while Wagner's Minstrel Band kindly volunteered a fine tune as they passed the Eldridge House. Gen. SHERMAN expressed himself as highly pleased, and said that he took a great deal of stock in Kansas, and in the City of Lawrence.

The General is just finishing up a long tour of inspection of the frontier military posts, having passed out via New-Orleans and Galveston.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

No business was transacted at the Exchange yesterday, and in all matters relating to real estate the market was quiet, no sales of importance, even at private hands, being reported. Today no auctions are announced at the Exchange, and the only public sale to take place is one at Mamaroneck, Westchester County, under the direction of the Sheriff, at which thirty acres of choice land will be disposed of, located on Mamaroneck-avenue, within half a mile of the railway station. Upon the property a handsome country house is already erected, together with all necessary out-buildings, also a modern cottage. Being a forced sale, a good opportunity for an investment is here presented. The auction will be conducted by E. DINGEE & CO., and takes place on the ground at 3 o'clock. For next week the sales proposed, both of City and country real estate, are few in number, and with one or two exceptions rather wanting in interest. A list of such auctions as are to occur will, however, be given as usual in our weekly review of the market published on Monday.

The sale of lots at Flatbush, Kings County, on Thursday, by JOHNSON & MILLER, was an entire success, all the lots offered being sold at good figures, and in addition a number of other lots were disposed of, located in the immediate vicinity and owned by other parties. The portion of the property so offered comprised a part of the Martense farm, some 400 lots from which were sold in October, 1868, by the same firm conducting the present auction. The land adjoins Green-Wood Cemetery on the south side, and is prospectively very valuable. The attendance at the sale was large and bidding active. In all, 165 lots were sold, at prices ranging from $105 to $300 for those in size 25 by 100. Four lots on Martense-lane, 25 by 100, each brought $300; and four adjoining, on same avenue, corner of Minna-street, 25 by 112, $310 each. Seven corner lots, on Park-street, sold for $95 each. These are the only exceptions, all the other lots being City size. A detailed report of the sale is appended.

The sale of suburban property at Jamaica, Long Island, comprising forty-four lots, situate on the south-east corner of Fulton-street and Van Wyck-avenue, auctioned by JAMES A. FLEURY for Thursday, was adjourned until Thursday of next week. The property near Jamaica, adjoining the residence of Judge PRESSLEY, was sold, for $[illegible], by the same auctioneer, for Wednesday, under an order of the Supreme Court in partition, PHILO T. RUGGLES, Esq., referee. Was sold on the day named, and bought by Mr. BUSTEED. The land lies about one mile east of Jamaica, contains two and a half acres, and brought $1,300, a low price.

120 choice and desirable lots, situate on Vanderbilt-av., Richmond road, Simonson, Metcalf and Ross sts., lying on the grade and distant only ten minutes' walk from the landing. Vanderbilt-av. and the Richmond road have each flagged sidewalks; gas is laid in front of the property; the streets are all opened, and every lot is susceptible of immediate improvement.

The houses and out-buildings fronting on the Richmond road will be sold, with twelve lots of ground. House is two story and attic, contains eight rooms, and is (as well as the out-buildings) in good order, the whole forming a convenient and comfortable residence.

PROPOSALS FOR GRANITE FOR THE METAL DEPARTMENT.
OFFICE OF SUPERVISING ARCHITECT,
WASHINGTON, May 26, 1871.

Sealed proposals will be received until 12 o'clock, M., of the 23d day of June, 1871, at the office of the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department, for furnishing and delivering at the site of the proposed building all the dimension granite required for the exterior of the new State Department, for which about 160,000 cubic feet will be required. Proposals must state the price per cubic foot for stones whose dimensions do not exceed twenty cubic feet, and the rate of increase in price for stones exceeding twenty cubic feet. The exact average size of the stones cannot at present be given, but will approximate 40 cubic feet. Stones to be quarried and delivered according to a schedule of lots, which will be furnished the contractor. One inch will be allowed for quarry dimensions on each, worked face of the stone.

Each bid must be accompanied by a sample block, 12 inches cube, of the granite it is proposed to furnish, which must be sound, durable, of uniform color and good grain; free from discoloring or other foreign substances, and capable of withstanding the action of the elements, and that has been fully tested by use in buildings, and is from quarries capable of furnishing the quality and quantity desired within one year, and from which stone has been, or is now being used for first-class buildings.

Bidders will state how soon they can commence the delivery of stone, and the amount per week they can deliver. They will state the average and maximum sizes of stone that can be obtained from their quarry.

No bids will be received except from the owners or lessees of quarries from which the stone is proposed to be furnished.

All proposals must be made on the printed forms to be obtained of the Supervising Architect, and be accompanied by a certificate of the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) that the bidder will execute and perform the contract if awarded to him, and give bond therefor in the penal sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) and a valid and binding lease of the quarry to the Government for the unexpired term of the full performance of the contract; the lease to take effect upon the failure of the contractor to comply with the terms of the contract; said lease to authorize the Government to take full possession of the quarry and work it at the expense of the contractor in case of such default.

The right to reject any or all bids receive is reserved.

Proposals must be inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed "Proposals for Granite for State Department," and addressed to A. B. MULLETT, Supervising Architect, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

The property acquired by the Company is exempted from taxes and assessments during the period allowed for the final completion of the railway in the City. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of New-York are authorized and directed, with the approval of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, to subscribe for five millions of dollars of the stock of the Company, whenever one million of dollars thereof has been subscribed for by private parties. This conditional amount of stock has been wholly subscribed for and taken by the directors of the Company. On the completion of either of the lines of railway to the line of Westchester County, the Supervisors of that county are authorized to issue the bonds of the county to such amount as the Supervisors shall deem expedient, to aid in the construction and extension of the railway in and through that county. For the proper equalization of the interest of shareholders who may subscribe and pay in moneys at different times, the directors are authorized to issue scrip for interest on such payments, payable out of the earnings.
The terms of subscription will be as follows:
TEN per cent of the amount of stock subscribed for to be paid in cash at the time of subscription. The residue to be paid as called for by the Board of Directors on a notice of thirty days, but no call at any one time to exceed ten per cent.
Scrip for interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum will be issued by the Company, payable out of the first earnings of the railway; small installments paid on stock subscribed for within thirty days after the subscription-books shall be opened.
The Company reserves the right to close the subscription-books at any time after the 28th day of July, 1871.
By order of the Board of Directors,
ALEXANDER T. STEWART,
JOHN JACOB ASTOR,
LEVI P. MORTON,
Commissioners on behalf of the Company.

CARLTON VS. LANAHAN.

The Trial Before the Book Committee Yesterday.

Important Statements of the Defendant—Fresh Allegations as to Irregular Business Customs in the Concern—Speeches of Counsel on Both Sides.

The trial of Dr. LANAHAN was commenced yesterday morning before a Court, composed of the Book Committee of the Methodist Church, and Bishops JAMES and AMES were present, and a letter from Bishop SCOTT announced that he hoped to be present this morning. Bishop SIMPSON is too ill to come. All of the Committee except J. H. MOORE, of Illinois, who is on his way hither, were in attendance. DeWITT BROOKS, Chairman of the Book Committee, presided over the Council, and Rev. S. M. STYLES was appointed official stenographer.

At the commencement of the session, Dr. CARLTON announced that Judge FANCHER and Gen. RUNYON would appear as counsel for him, with Rev. Mr. FRASS and H. D. ROLPH as associates. Dr. LANAHAN named as his counsel, Judge REYNOLDS and Rev. J. M. BUCKLEY, with E. W. FRICK, OLIVER HOYT, and JOHN ELLIOTT as associates.

MR. FANCHER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. FANCHER opened the case on the part of the complainant. He said: About the 15th of May, Agents of the Book Concern received an order from the Supreme Court to show cause why a mandamus should not be issued by that Court commanding him to allow JOHN LANAHAN free access to all the books and papers of the Book Concern. The affidavit which accompanied this order was made by the Assistant Agent, and was founded upon assumptions of fact upon which we thought of sufficient importance to be called to your attention, and which you thought sufficiently important to demand investigation. This investigation we are here today to prosecute.

As the very outset we find a proceeding in a secular Court, the Assistant Agent, the Concern, the relator, and the Concern by name, and the Agent, THOMAS CARLTON, respondents. The secular arm is called in by Dr. LANAHAN to enforce upon the Concern certain actions which he claims right. This best is measure has been taken without consultation with agent or Committee. Mr. FANCHER read extracts from the affidavit of Dr. LANAHAN, in regard to the act of the Legislature incorporating the Book Concern, aiming to show that he ignored the General Conference by whom he was appointed, and based his claim to authority on that legislative act alone, rather than on the authority of the Church. Dr. LANAHAN implicates former Agents as having kept property belonging to the Concern. Who believes any such thing? What man is there in the Methodist Church who dares make such an accusation, except JOHN LANAHAN? Here is an application for access to the books of the Concern for an investigation into any frauds which have been committed by the present or any former Agent. And this application is made by a temporal Court. There is no excuse for the proceeding. Mr. LANAHAN has never been interfered with in his examination. After your session at Cincinnati for ten long weeks he had full access, and was allowed to take them to a private room and examine them. Dr. LANAHAN states, as one excuse for his proceeding, that he was sued by SAMUEL J. GOODENOUGH, and needed the books as evidence. Was not this complaint covered up in having had the unrestricted access to the books for ten weeks? He states that he wants books for evidence in the Goodenough suit, which books he has never been allowed to see. How does he know that books which he had never seen would contain evidence on his side in the Goodenough case?

IS IT BEGGING THE QUESTION?

Mr. FANCHER cited the parallel case of JOHN B. GOUGH vs. Dr. F. E. LEEK, in which an application was made to Baron MARTIN for a commission to examine witnesses in Scotland and elsewhere in Great Britain in behalf of the defendant. Baron MARTIN refused the application, saying "he had never heard of any such attempt being made to obtain a roving commission to collect evidence in support of a libel. The defendant ought to have provided himself with evidence before he libeled the plaintiff." Dr. LANAHAN ought to have provided himself with evidence before he took proceedings in the Goodenough case. The fact is, Dr. LANAHAN was not denied access to the books. He was only denied permission to take them away. If he did not like that he should have come to you of the Committee who were sitting at the time and have complained, instead of having recourse to a secular Court.

HOW THE AFFIDAVIT APPEARED.

Mr. FANCHER then adduced as evidence, along with other documents, a copy of the Times of June 2, containing Dr. LANAHAN'S affidavit of June 1. He stated that the affidavit was served upon Mr. CARLTON and himself, as respondents, on June 1, and, though no one except themselves were allowed to see it or know of its existence, they found it, to their astonishment, in the TIMES of next morning. The affidavits on both sides, which have been printed, had been put in as evidence, with the understanding that no facts therein were to be accepted as evidence without further proof. The prosecution then rested their case.

In answer to an inquiry from Judge REYNOLDS, as to the specific charges on which the prosecution would be based, it was stated that the prosecution would rely for their charges on Dr. CARLTON'S letter of May 24, which was published in full in the Times of yesterday.

The order of the daily proceedings during the trial was discussed, and it was decided that the Committee should meet each day at 9 o'clock, for private session, the trial to begin at 10, precisely. The hour of adjournment will be 4½ o'clock, and the time of recess will be appointed daily. After this matter was settled the Committee adjourned for one hour.

AFTERNOON SESSION—THE DEFENSE.

Immediately after the Council reassembled, at 2½ o'clock, Rev. J. M. BUCKLEY arose to open for the defense. He said: The particular act charged in the letter of the Assistant Agent to the Book Committee is granted by the defense at once; namely, the application of the Assistant Agent to the Supreme Court for a mandamus to compel the Agent to allow the former access to the books. The justification of an act turns upon the history preceding it. Insane and drunken men alone perform independent acts. The history preceding the act of the Assistant Agent will be the grounds on which he will endeavor to justify the acts in question. If it be shown that there is a very strong reason for the act, he will be justified in it. The question of the relation of Agent and Assistant Agent goes to the very bottom of the affair. The respondent has prepared what he submits as a kind of answer to the general spirit of the specification on which he is to be tried. Mr. BUCKLEY then read the answer of Dr. LANAHAN, Dr. LANAHAN replies to the points contained in Dr. CARLTON'S letter, one by one. He says:

1. I did apply to Court for an order which should give me free access to the books and accounts of the Concern. In my affidavit I stated that I particularly desired to examine the three books, bank-books, and vouchers, from 1856 to the present time." I also stated in the same affidavit that these books were entirely under the control of my co-corporator, THOMAS CARLTON, and that I had several times requested that I might have access to and examine them; but that such request had not been complied with. 2. In seeking full access to all the books and accounts of the Concern, I conceived that I was entirely within my rights as Disciplinary Assistant Agent, and that Dr. CARLTON [illegible] 3. I [illegible] within my Disciplinary rights. The [illegible] anything speaks of any other person as Agent. It commits the trust to the keeping of the Agent. 4. I answer, again, that my efforts to obtain access to the books and accounts, which I [illegible] were both expedient and necessary. 5. In my answer to the complaint of S. J. GOODENOUGH, I assert, as a ground of justification, that I discovered mismanagement and fraud in the business of the Book Concern. It is meet that I should prove this allegation consistently. The books containing matters of the last importance for that purpose, my endeavors to secure access to them were both expedient and necessary. 6. It is charged on me as a misdemeanor that I went to the Book Concern into Court. I answer that I was dragged first into Court myself, and put upon my defense. Not all other means failed, and the aid of Court asked for. I am censured because my application for the aid of Court does not name the Goodenough suit. I remarked to my lawyer that the Goodenough suit not named in it. He answered that to apply for relief on the ground of the said suit would be [illegible] Court to intervene in matter of private business, and might be refused; that the true ground to be taken was the broad one of corporate right. I [illegible], moreover, with "disregard and contempt of the authority of the Book Committee and of the Agent of the Book Concern." I respectfully deny the charge.

DR. LANAHAN'S FACTS AND FIGURES.

In support of his charges against the Book Concern and Mr. GOODENOUGH, Dr. LANAHAN made the following statements:

In my former communications to the Committee, I showed: (1.) That the Bindery Department had [illegible] to my knowledge, in the space of twenty months [illegible] of leather, in the space of twenty months; (2.) Books will show that the former Superintendent, in 1869, used $41,074 15 of stock in turning out $80,900 01 of work. The former Superintendent, in 1870, used $16,422 [illegible] of stock in turning out $32,900 01 of work. The former Superintendent, in 1869, used 70 tons of binders' board, and turned out 78,07 of work, while the present Superintendent, in 1870, used 32 tons for $60,000 of work. 2. As to the printing department, I showed that for some time a man having no legal connection with the House had the monopoly of the paper for it, all orders passing through his hands; that he controlled the purchase of about [illegible] worth of paper, and that on a [illegible] of this profit was $6,000 of the [illegible] exhibit of December 1, 1869, was added to capital stock. According to the ledger, there was a loss of [illegible] that year. To prevent a showing of greater loss, an addition of 25 per cent was made to the inventories, "for increased cost of materials and labor," on absolutely sound books in the store, amounting, in the aggregate, to $19,708 32. But for this arbitrary increase a loss would have appeared of $20,417 32. According to the printed exhibit of Nov. 30, 1868, $68,244 [illegible] added to capital stock. According to the ledger, $73,444 [illegible] was added. The inventory of merchandise on hand for 1868 on the inventory book is $161,[illegible] and by a deduction of fifteen per cent, it is reduced to $139,[illegible] 04, and on the ledger it is entered $140,[illegible] 62. The inventory of merchandise for 1869 was properly made up upon a basis of cost valuation of articles aggregating $80,[illegible] 48, to which was affixed the following: "Amount added by order of agents, $61,[illegible] 14," thus arbitrarily increasing the inventory to $140,[illegible] 62.

It was shown by figures how the periodical account had been so kept that the gains varied in a remarkable manner, while the subscription and advertising business continued uniform. Attention was called to the marked differences between the annual cash balances as shown by the cash-book, and as shown by the balances in the Shoe and Leather Bank. He showed that while the Concern had large cash balances annually it paid out in the six years $6,022 15 for interest. After citing a letter from the Agent of the Depository at Boston, which shown great confusion in the accounts of the Concern, Dr. LANAHAN concludes as follows:

AN APPEAL.

I have now stated my case as far as is proper in this answer. For what am I arraigned this second time before you? Have I failed in the faithful discharge of my duty? Have I occupied the position from which I was suspended for my private advantage and profit? Have I made unrighteous gains? I had thought that I was doing the Church a needed service in protecting the integrity of its most important charity; that I was interposing in behalf of worn-out preachers and their widows, and orphans, when I protested against waste and plunder. If any fund of the Church should be sacredly guarded, it is that which is set apart for these beneficiaries. I have tried to guard it, and for so doing I stand here a presumptive criminal, with men all around me clamoring for my removal. I am wearied in mind and wasted in body by this conflict; still I maintain it, unequally it may be, in firm confidence that God will vindicate the truth. I am said to be an enemy of the Book Concern. I have loved it and labored for it, in all my ministry. I love it too well to be willing to see its substance wasted by negligence and fraud. Mine charge that I am mad; if so, then some of the wisest and best of the ministry and laity, although they do not think so, are mad with me. No, I am not mad, but speak the words of truth and soberness. The facts which I have discovered cannot be set aside by resolutions, by my suspension, or by my deposition. They will still remain to testify against wrong-doing and wrong-doers. For trying to do my honest duty, I have been set upon as though I were the greatest criminal in the Methodist Church. Partisans have raged against me as though I had injured them personally, my name has been cast out as evil. Yet, here I stand, bearing my testimony against wrong. I may be powerless in present appearances, yet I am confident, but with faith in God, who is a righteous judge, I appeal to Him, to the Church, and to the Christian world."

Mr. BUCKLEY concluded by asking permission to put in as evidence the journal of the former investigation, copies of the Advocate and Journal newspapers, and also the official journals of the Church, with the privilege of citing such portions as were desired in the progress of the case. Gen. RUNYON, for the defense, objected, and the Chair decided that the evidence was not admissible in that wholesale form.

Dr. LANAHAN was then called by his counsel, Mr. BUCKLEY, as a witness.

DR. LANAHAN TESTIFIES.

Mr. BUCKLEY—What led you to think there was corruption in the Book Concern and to take the steps which you took against your colleague and others between the time of your coming into the Concern and the assembling of the Book Committee? Give us your request?

Dr. LANAHAN—When I first came I heard nothing of the routine of business, purchase of stock, &c.; in July I asked Mr. GOODENOUGH something about the purchase of paper; his manner was repulsive and his answer indefinite; Dr. CARLTON then proceeded to follow in detail how he had great difficulty in getting a sight of the bills of paper bought for the business, and how he found when he did so that much of the paper was bought from J. F. PORTER. He visited Mr. BRADLEY R. HARD, a paper-dealer, and found by comparison of his accounts with those of the Book Concern that paper which PORTER had bought from Mr. HARD at $10 28 a ream he had sold to the Book Concern the same day for $13 50 a ream. Mr. HARD said, too, that he would have sold to the Book Concern as cheaply as he would have sold to PORTER. Dr. CARLTON had told Dr. LANAHAN that he wished Mr. GOODENOUGH would not deal with PORTER, and had asked him not to do so, but Mr. GOODENOUGH would not comply with his wishes in the matter.

AN OBJECTION.

Dr. LANAHAN had proceeded to this point in his evidence when Gen. RUNYON rose and said that he could not see what bearing all this testimony had on the case under consideration. The application for a mandamus did not say a word about Mr. GOODENOUGH, but stated that Dr. LANAHAN desired to examine the books for the purpose of ascertaining if all the property of the Concern standing in the name of the present or past agents had been turned over to the credit of the Concern. Whatever tended to prove that there was any property of the Concern standing in the agents' name in such a way as to justify this extreme course was relevant, but it was not relevant to introduce the question of how GOODENOUGH bought paper. He thought this examination should not be proceeded with.

Judge REYNOLDS argued that the evidence bore directly on the case, and ought to be admitted to show what a necessity the Assistant Agent had for these books for use in the case of GOODENOUGH against LANAHAN.

TESTIMONY OF THE DEFENSE RULED OUT.

The Chairman ruled that in order to show that Dr. LANAHAN was completely justified in applying to the secular Court, it was necessary to prove first that the state of things which his application declared to exist, existed at the time the application was made. The line of testimony pursued by the defense assumed that the charges were true, and proceeded to explain them. After the charges had been proved this evidence might be adduced to explain the existence of the evils charged. In the present condition of the trial he must rule it out as irrelevant.

Dr. LANAHAN'S counsel said that if that ruling was sustained by the Committee, it would be impossible for them to proceed further at this time.

Rev. Dr. SLICER moved an appeal from the decision of the Chair, and the Committee went into executive session, the time for adjournment having arrived. The executive session was secret, but it, may be said, on good authority, that the decision of the Chair was sustained by the Committee, in a vote of 9 to 5, or thereabouts. The defense must therefore adopt a totally new line of procedure.

THE PAPAL JUBILEE.

Celebration in this City Yesterday—General Rejoicings Among the Catholics—Imposing Services.

In accordance with the circular recently issued by Archbishop MCCLOSKEY, the completion of the twenty-fifth year of the Pontificate of Pope PIUS IX. was duly celebrated by the Catholics in this City yesterday. The different churches were decorated with flowers and religious adornments, the gifts of the congregations, and the attendance at the numerous services quite surpassed the ordinary gatherings at other festivals. Availing themselves of the benefit of the indulgences extended to communicants, thousands feasted at each mass, and in the administration of the Eucharist the services of an unusual number of priests were called into requisition. High mass was celebrated throughout the City at 10½ o'clock, and appropriate addresses were delivered.

St. Patrick's Cathedral was gorgeously decorated, and the choicest flowers adorned the altar. High Mass, Coram Pontifice, was celebrated by Very Rev. WM. STARRS, D. D., V. G., assisted by Revs. FRANCIS MCNERHNY, P. F. MCSWEENEY, D. D., and J. H. MCGEAN. The Archbishop, after the Gospel, delivered a glowing sermon on the Holy Father, his text being "Behold a great Priest! who in his days pleased God, and was found just." The music was exceedingly fine. The grand chorus of the "Te Deum Laudamus" was sung by the choir, assisted by the Rosary and Altar Societies, the Sodalities of the Blessed Virgin Mary, the Conference of St. Vincent de Paul and the members of the Purgation Society.

The decorations of the Church of the Redeemer were elaborate and exceedingly beautiful. The interior of the edifice was covered with immense wreaths of oak leaves, and the altars were decorated with flowers and evergreens. A life-size portrait of the Pope was surrounded with the verse in German and English, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." German and Papal flags were suspended from the wall. The Institute of the Sisters of Notre Dame, adjoining the church, was also profusely decorated, and the residence of the Redemptorist Fathers was decked with banners and festoons of evergreens and leaves. At the Church of St. Nicholas, and the other German churches in the City, the Church of Our Lady of Sorrow, at St. Joseph's, St. Francis D'Assisi, St. John the Apostle, St. Alphonsus', St. Bernard's, St. Peter's, St. Andrew's and others, the services were of unusual impressiveness, and additional musical aid was called in with the ordinary choir. Attached to the Jesuits' church, Fifteenth-street, is a pious sodality, called "The Xavier Union," consisting of Roman Catholic gentlemen, of this City, educated at the College of the Jesuit Fathers, and other similar institutions, and otherwise known as "The Xavier Alumni Sodality." Thursday night the members assembled at the Xavier Union, No. 49 West Fifteenth-street, and the President of the Association, Rev. F. DALY, S. J., sent a telegram to the Pope on behalf of the Sodality, congratulating him on the unusual event celebrated joyfully throughout the world. At the high mass at St. Xavier's Church yesterday, at which Rev. J. HUDON was celebrant, there was a very large congregation, and the music was of a superior character. In the evening a meeting of the Sodality was convened to commemorate the event in a poetical manner, and several of the most prominent Catholic gentlemen of the City were in attendance. Speeches were delivered and general harmonious rejoicings were the order of the occasion. Apart from the observances in the churches there was a general rejoicing among Catholics throughout the entire City, and the example set by the German Catholics in the East in inaugurating the ceremonies on Thursday evening was faithfully followed. Almost every Catholic private residence contained something to remind them of the anniversary, thousands of portraits of the Pope were on exhibition, hundreds of thousands of transparencies glimmered amidst a forest of flags of all nationalities in harmony at least in their feelings of veneration and love for the Pope. It is needless to observe that the day was observed as a holiday, and all the Catholic institutions of the City were closed for all purposes save that of devotion. The Tridiuum which has been proclaimed will be continued today and to-morrow. The observances in other cities were of a similar character.

Departure of Fisk's Military.

The Ninth Regiment, of this City, started on its proposed Boston frolic yesterday afternoon, departing on board of the Sound steamer Newport. The Eighth Regiment acted as escort to the free excursion party on their march to the vessel. About 250 uniformed men went on the trip, not including the opera troupe band. It is said that one of the chief officers of the regiment accounted for this large number by remarking that 200 of the privates had been recruited from the ranks of the Seventh Regiment, and 100 more from the Twenty-second Regiment, under the stipulation that the trip should not cost them anything, and they should be furnished with uniforms. There was also an installment of Erie employes to help fill up the depleted companies of the once famous Ninth, and give it the appearance of being a large organization. On reaching Boston today the free-riding, free-sleeping and free-eating soldiers will be received, according to their own reports, in grand style by the military of that place. They will be met by a delegation of officers belonging to the Ninth Massachusetts Infantry, Col. FINAN commanding, who will escort them to Boston. On their arrival there they receive a salute of twenty-one guns, and will be met by a detail of one company from several regiments, who will march with them to the St. James Hotel, where breakfast will be provided for them. Subsequently the Ninth will visit Charlestown, escorted by detachments from the First and Ninth Regiments of Boston, the Fifth Regiment of Charlestown, and the First Artillery. At Charlestown the Ninth will participate in the celebration of the Battle of Bunker Hill, and will partake of a collation. A brigade dress parade and review will then take place before Gov. CLAFLIN and staff on Boston Common. At the conclusion of this spectacle the excursionists will take dinner at the Revere House, after which they will give a free concert on the Common in the evening. The programme for Sunday has not been announced.

It is asserted that the cost of the display, amounting to about $10,000, comes principally from the pockets of those who supply the Erie Road and Narragansett Steam-ship Company with funds. The money drummers of the Ninth have been kept busy during the past three weeks gathering in the funds, and the subscriptions of those who have contributed to the trip have been gauged in accordance with the patronage which they have had, or expect to have from the two above-named corporations. One of the subscriptions was obtained from a woman who supplies the Steam-ship Company's boats with vegetables.

Reception of the Alumni of Packer Institute.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of Packer Collegiate Institute closed last evening with a grand reception by the Alumni. At an early hour the guests began to arrive, and as they entered were greeted and cordially welcomed by Profs. CHITTENDEN, EATON and BEACH, and the lady teachers, who directed them to the retiring rooms, where they doffed their superfluous apparel, and joined in the evening dress. The spacious building was entirely thrown open. The capacious grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns and other transparencies, and a splendid band of music was stationed in the centre of the garden and discoursed choice selections from favorite compositions, to the sweet strains of which the merry promenaders kept time, until 9½ o'clock, when Rev. Dr. VINTON, in a few appropriate remarks, unveiled the marble statue of Rev. Dr. BETHUNE, one of the benefactors of the institution, and whom the Faculty venerate for his fidelity to the cause of education.

Many of the lady guests present last evening were pupils at some time during the thirty-five years of the existence of the institution, and as they recalled their girlhood days it was like old scenes revived, and though years had rolled by the memories of graduation day were not forgotten.

At a late hour the guests retired, well pleased with the reception accorded them, and with fond remembrances of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the High Female Seminary of Brooklyn.
